RED SOX SCORED FIRST

CUB-GIANT TIE MUST BE PLAYED OFF

CINCINATI, Oct. 6.—The Board of Directors of the National League this afternoon decided the disputed New York-Chicago game to be a tie. They have ordered the Cubs to play the tie off in the Polo grounds, should the Giants desire it. In case the Giants win the remaining two games with the Doves they will be tied with the Cubs for the pennant. Then they will undoubtedly demand that the tie game be played off on the Polo Grounds.

Should New York drop one game even to the Doves they will demand that the game be played off with the Cubs, for if they won the played-off tie game they would tie the Cubs for the pennant, and three-game series would be necessary to decide the flag.

One thing is certain, the Giants and the Cubs will cross bats again this season on the Polo Grounds, and the hottest encounter in baseball history will be the result.

The umpires, when the game ended on the Polo grounds in the memorable riot when Bridwell made the winning base hit and when the mob swarmed over the field and both clubs demanded the game, declared it to be a tie.

At once both clubs apepaled to President Harry Pulliam and he heard the stories of the umpires and sustained them saying the game was a tie. Now the Board of Directors of the old league decides that the umpires and Pulliam were right and that the disputed game was a tie.

BULGARIA'S REVOLT SPREADS TO ROUMELIA

SERVIA CALLS OUT 120,000 TROOPS—YOUNG TURKS RALLY TO SULTAN.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—News of real fighting is hourly expected from the Balkans.

The mighty army of the new Czar of Bulgaria is already at the frontier. The Sultan has rushed troops and war munitions to Adrianople. Czar Ferdinad has gone to Eastern Roumelia to proclaim independence of that province, which pays large tribute to the Sultan.

The Young Turks have rallied to the Sultans' aid to prevent the seizure of any of Turkey's provinces.

Servia to-day, by imperial ukase, called out 120,000 reservists to take up arms against Austria-Hungary, in case the latter tries to seize Bosnia or Herzgovina.

The Czar of Russia has notified Austria that Russia considers the treaty of Berlin broken and demands a share in the division of property. Germany is lined up with Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who is also backed by Russia.

England and France are striving for a peacable settlement and a court of arbitration. The Porte has approved the latter course, and has called for a conference of representatives of all the powers.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 6.—Czar Ferdinand and hisministers have left Tirnova for Philippopolis, the capital of Eastern Roumelia.

Evidently it is the intention of Ferdinand to make at Philippopolis a separate declaration of independence for Eastern Roumelia.

This action would involve a serious practical question. Eastern Roumelia since her revolt against Turkey thirty years ago has been under Bulgarian administration. But her nominal vasselage to Turkey has taken the practical form of the payment of a substantial annual tribute to the Porte. Her new independence would, of course, cut off this item of Turkish revenue.

When Ferdinand and his ministers arrived at Tirnova, they were greeted at the station by a great crowd of people. A procession was formed and proceeded to the Church of Forty Martyrs. It was received by the archmandrite and others of the clergy, and the Prince proceeded to the chancel. After an anthem was sung, Ferdinand, deeply moved, read the proclamation of independence. It was as follows:

Czar's Declaration.

"By the will of our never-to-be-forgotten liberator and our great kindred, the Russian nation, aided by our good friends and neighbors, the subjects of the King of Roumania and by the Bulgarian heroes of 1878, the chains of slavery were broken by which, for so many years and centuries Bulgaria, once a great and glorious power, was bound.

"From that time until to-day, for full thirty years, the Bulgarian nation has been preserving the memory of those who labored for its freedom, and, inspired by their tradition, has worked incessantly for the development of its beautiful country, and under my guidance and that of the departed Prince Alexander has made itself a nation fit to take equal place in the family of civilized peoples with its gifts of culture and progress.

"Bulgaria, practically an independent nation, was impeded in its normal and peaceful development by certain illusions and formal limitations which resulted in coldness of relations between Turkey and Bulgaria. I and the nation desire to rejoice in the political development of Turkey. Turkey and Bulgaria, free and independent of each other, may exist under conditions which will allow them to strengthen their friendly relations and devote themselves to peaceful internal development.

"Inspired by the sacred purpose of fulfilling national requirements and national desire, I proclaim, with the blessing of the Almighty, Bulgaria an independent kingdom. Together with the nation, I firmly believe that this act will meet the approbation of the great powers."

Hailed with Cheers.

The proclamtaion of Bulgarian independence met with an enthusiastic reception at Philippopolis. The church bells were run, and crowds headed by bands paraded the streets, afterward making peaceful demonstrations outside the foreign consulates. The town is decorated with flags and was illuminated last night.

An agent of the Oriental Railway Company informed the Bulgarian government that unless the Roumelian section of the line was resored to the company within three days, the company would demand an indemnity of $3,000 per day.

POWERS CALLED ON BY TURKEY TO HOLD BALKAN CONFERENCE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 6.—The council of ministers held a long session to-day to consider the action of Bulgaria in declaring her independence from Turkey at Tirnova yesterday.

It was decided that it was impossible to accept any proceedings that violated existing treaties, and that Turkey should address a circular note to the powers pointing out the necessity of taking measures to enforce respect for the treaty of Berlin.

Replying to the telegram sent to the Turkish government by Prince Ferdinand in which he said that in declaring the independence of Bulgaria he had been compelled to respect the voice of the nation, and expressed the hope that the friendly relations between the two countries would continue. Turkey says she has invited the powers to confer on the situation, and as her rights are guaranteed by the powers she will look to them for defence.

YOUNG TURKS BACK SULTAN IN BATTLE FOR PROVINCES

SALONIKA, Turkey, Oct. 6.—The Central Committee of Union and Progress (Young Turks) has issued a proclamation announcing as regards Bulgaria's declaration of independence and Austria's intention to annex Bosnia and Herzegovina that they are violations of Turkey's rights, and the committee solomnly protests in the name of humanity against the ill-feeling that is entertained by Austro-Hungary and Bulgaria toward a people which is progressing in the direction of liberty.

The committee appeals to the public opinion of Europe against "this attempt on the most sacred rights of a nation."

TURKS RUSH ARMY TO REPEL ADVANCE OF BULGARIANS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 6.—At the War office to-day it was unofficially denied that there had been a passage at arms between the Bulgarian and Turkish troops upon the frontier.

So far as can be learned here through telegraphic communication, the armies are not within fighting range, although it is declared that an advance is expected.

Even before Prince Ferdinand promulgated the proclamation of peace yesterday the Bulgarian troops had been advanced toward the Turkish borders as though to be held in readiness to repel an invasion.

Information was brought to the war office to-day that Austria-Hungary had mobolized two armies. Both armed corps are being held in readiness in case that there be an outbreak over the proposed acquisition of Bosnia and Herzegovina by the Empire.

For three days Turkey has been shipping rapid-fire guns toward the frontier.

It is said to-day that the Sultan has dictated a long telegram to Emperor William of Germany, asking his advice in the present situation.

The Sultan has always looked upon the Kaiser, as an ally, and the news that Germany has supported Austria-Hungary was a shock to him. Kalmil Pasha, the Grand Vizier, and Baron Bieberstein, the German Ambassador, had a violent dispute when the Ambassador was told that Austria was the ally of Germany and had combined with Bulgaria.

LONDON BOND HOUSE HOLDINGS $9,000,000 BID IN FEAR OF WAR

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 6.—It is stated here that a prominent London bond house has concelled its outstanding bids for various Canadian municipal bonds aggregating $9,000,000. This step is regarded as a precautionary one in view of the uncertainties of the Bulgarian situation.

DETROIT AND CHICAGO PLAY FOR PENNANT

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct. 6.—Worked up to fever heat at the prospect of seeing the deciding game of the American League pennant race played this afternoon between the White Sox and the Detroit Tigers, crowds flocked to the grounds this afternoon by the thousands.

Never, not even in the series between the White Sox and the Cubs for the world's championship two years ago, has there been greater interest in the outcome of a ball game than was manifested to-day.

If the White Sox won the flag would go to them, while if they lost the Detroit Tigers would bear off the honors. The White Sox management was afraid to trust any pitcher in the box save Big Ed Walsh, the twirler who has had so much to do with the present high position of Comiskey's team.

Donovan for the Tigers.

For Detroit Manager Jennings didn't have the nerve to try anybody but Bill Donovan, the Tigers foremost pitcher. Walsh pitched yesterday for the White Sox and let the Tigers down with four hits. The American League's "Iron Man" was ready for another go to-day.

The weather was clear and cool. If the thermometer had been ten degrees below zero the "fans" would have come out just the same. All the enthusiasm for which Chicago crowds are famous was displayed to-day. Long before the game began the White Sox Rooters' Club made merry, and when finally the members of Comiskey's team emerged from the clubhouse and trotted on the field after the fashion of college football teams, the yells of their supporters could have been heard half-way up Lake Michigan.

"Cubs" Watched Game.

Most of the members of the Cubs were seated in the grand stand. They believed that they would eventually have to meet the White Sox for the world's championship, and they were there to size up the White Sox's style of play. At the same time, it was noticed that they kept their eyes on the score board which showed how the battle between the Giants and Bostons was going. They realized that they were not on safe ground yet.

The betting was 10 to 9 on the Sox, and plenty of money went up, there being a good-sized crowd of Detroit rooters with money in their pockets on hand. The Detroit delegation was almost lost in the vast crowd of Chicago sympathizers, and their yells of encouragement were lost in the volume of sound that went up from the local throats.

Comiskey, the "Old Roman," was worked up to a feverish state of excitement. He sought his little cubby hole under the grandstand early in the day and impatiently waited for the game to begin. It wasn't safe for anyone to try to get near him. Commy is one of the hardest loosers in the baseball business. If the Sox win this afternoon nothing will be too good for the Chicago public, but if they lose——

3 GREENOUGH WIDOWS READY TO END FIGHT

Attorney Homans Tells Judge Settlement of Will Contest Is in Sight.

That the celebrated Greenough will case, involving an estate valued at over $1,000,000 and the claims of three women to the widow's portion of the vast estate, will be settled out of court was intimated to-day by Attorney Robert Homans, one of the counsel in the case. He told Judge Harmond to-day that a settlement was under consideration by the contesting parties.

Joseph F. Greenough died at the Hotel Vendome March 20, 1906. Immediately following his death three women appeared, each claiming to have been married to him in the following order: Martha Higgins Greenough, Emma Pomeroy Greenough and Mary Kevelvas Greenough.

At the first hearing of the case the Probate Court decided in favor of Martha Greenough, giving her $5,000 and one half the residue of the estate. The other two women immediately filed appeals.

Marriage Kept Secret.

Early in the seventies Greenough and Martha Higgins were married and lived for a time in Cambridge. By mutual agreement the marriage was kept secret. A few years later Greenough is said to have married Emma Pomeroy. This marriage is alleged to have been public, and his second wife lived with him until she learned of his prior marriage to Martha Higgins. Then she left him.

Following the termination of his second matrimonial venture Greenough went to New York, where he is said to have become greatly attached to a Hungarian noble woman, studying art in New York. After a brief courtship the two entered into a common law marriage. By the third wife he had a son after he had gone to Philadelphia and gone through the regular marriage ceremony. All this time the first two wives were living and no divorce had been secured.

Secured Colorado Divorce.

Greenough then went to Colorado, where he secured, according to the two other wives, a divorce from Martha Higgins. Returning to New York he lived awhile with the third wife, then sought out Emma Pomeroy, showed her the divorce from the first and got her to live with him again. Then, it is alleged, he left Emma and returned to Mary. Upon the failure of the latter's health Greenough persuaded her to go abroad, promising to meet her there. This he never did.

BY SAM CRANE.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 6.—Encouraged and enthused by a more than a living chance to win the pennant, the Giants faced the Bostons again this afternoon with even more fighting spirit and ginger than yesterday.

The board of directors of the National League are still trying to find some scheme to satisfy everybody connected with baseball and fans all over the country, but the Giants are fighting to win games on the field, where they should be, and not in star chamber proceedings, where politics of the game prevails more than justice and fairness.

The Giants showed up in much better playing form to-day than in Philadelphia and no excuse can be given for a defeat on account of crippled condition. Bresnahan's lame ankle was not so much recovered that he did not walk and run with a perceptible limp, but his pure grit carries him through so that he is more valuable with even his limp than if he was bothered with a smaller and less quick-thinking brain apparently. That is where Roger always fits in to be in at the death.

Donlin and Seymour did no hitting yesterday, but they are the kind of players who, if they fall off in batting one day, are liable to break up a game the next day, so those two sluggers were depended on to tear things wide open this afternoon.

Larry Doyle was out on the field in uniform, but Herzog, his understudy, is doing altogether too well to be taken out at this important stage, and Larry will come in very handy to put in at bat when a pinch hit is needed.

Money for Doves if Victors.

The Bostons are under instructions from President Dovey, who is one of the board of directors, to beat the Giants at all hazards, and it was reported up here that several of the Boston players have been promised nice, juicy money presents if they win one of the next two games.

As Charley Murphy agreed to give Shettsline of the Philadelphia club an auto car if the Phillies would defeat the Giants four games in the last series, one does not have to go far to imagine from whom the offers to the Boston players come from.

There was an immense crowd out at this afternoon's game, yesterday's victory of the home team and the anxiety resulting over the long delayed decision of the Board of Directors have got the big town baseball crazy, and the inquiries at the press box for information from Cincinnati were such as to keep the staff writers extremely busy answering questions.

From the start of the game to its finish there was a wild roar from the assembled fans on every play, and when any Giant did anything out of the ordinary, there was a tumult of applause from the frantic, cheering crowd.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Oct. 6.—The New York Highlanders made their last appearance of the year on these grounds this afternoon before a fair-sized crowd, everything considered. There was nothing at stake. There was no chance for the visitors to climb out of tailend position and there was no danger of the Red Sox being ousted from the lead of the second division.

It was Manager Lake's ambition to finish the season with as many games won as lost, but he will hardly have a chance to celebrate, as a victory in all the remaining games will not bring the team up to the .500 mark.

The Highlanders presented a team of youngsters again. Some of the new recruits look like the goods, especially O'Rourke, who was seen here on the last trip of the New Yorks.

To-morrow will be the last day of the season on the American League grounds, the Athletics coming over here for a double-header. The Boston American cup, won by McConnell of the Red Sox, and Curley of the Roxbury Athletics, in the voting contest to decide the most popular professional and amateur player, will be presented to the winners by Uncle Cy Young.

KNOCKDOWN FOR HURLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—"Battling" Hurley and Charley Griffin fought a fast six-round draw at the Bedford A. C. in Brooklyn. Hurley scored the only knockdown.

TUTTLE TO RESIGN B. & M. PRESIDENCY

FORCED OUT BY NEW HAVEN, REPORT SAYS. STEVENS TO SUCCEED HIM.

Lucius Tuttle has written his resignation as president of the Boston & Maine Railroad. This statement is made on the authority of a man high in transportation circles and closely identified with the Boston & Maine management.

If the present plans of the New Haven interests, which own the Boston & Maine road, are carried out, Mr. Tuttle will vacate his office on October 14 at the meeting of the directors of the Boston & Maine in Lawrence. John F. Stevens, vice-president of the New Haven Company, is slated to succeed Mr. Tuttle.

This is the final move by the New Haven in taking over the control of the competing road in violation of the laws of Massachusetts.

It was to take the presidency of the Boston & Maine that Mr. Stevens was brought one year ago from the Isthmus, where he was chief engineer of the Panama Canal.

At that time, when the New Haven corporation was being prosecuted by Attorney-General Malone of Massachusetts and by the Federal Government for the illegal acquisition of the B. & M., and at a time when all Massachusetts was aroused at the plan to monopolize New England transportation, President Mellen deemed it inexpedient to remove President Tuttle and give Stevens the job.

Control Made Absolute.

But now it is known that the New Haven company feels secure in its position, having ostensibly transferred the 110,000 shares of B. & M. stock it illegally acquired to grab the road to John L. Billard of Meriden, Ct. And during the past three months New Haven brokers have been secretly buying up nearly 60,000 additional shares of the capital stock of the company, to make its control absolute.

The New Haven now owns more than 160,000 out of the 313,434 shares of the Boston & Maine stock outstanding. The election of Mr. Stevens as president is assured at the directors' meeting October 14, if the Mellen interests wish to execute this coup.

Other big changes may be expected in the Boston & Maine directorate. The most important of these is the retirement of Vice-President Berry, Mr. Tuttle's chief aide, and the election of a New Haven official to his place.

Will Not Deny of Affirm.

President Tuttle does not deny that he intends to resign this month. A BOSTON AMERICAN reporter asked him this question:

"Mr. Tuttle, is it true that you are to resign when the directors of the Boston & Maine meet on October 14?"

"I have absolutely nothing to say to you about my resignation," he replied.

He refused to deny he was going to resign.

Vice-President Berry laughed when he was asked if he intended to step down.

"That rumor that President Tuttle and I were to resign has been kicking around the western part of the State for two years," he said. "But we haven't heard anything about it up here."

"Then you would say that the report is absolutely untrue, Mr. Berry?" he was asked.

"Yes, I should say just that," he replied.

Prominent financiers in Boston accept as true the statement that Mr. Tuttle will quit the presidency this month. State street has for months discounted his resignation. This was in part due to the activity of B. & M. stock, which jumped from 125, the figure at which it sold for months, to 140.

Most of the 60,000 shares of the stock recently gobbled up by New Haven interests was secured by private purchase. The coup was as shrewd and as secret as that by which the 109,948 shares were secured two years ago. It was bought all over New England, mostly in small blocks, though several large amounts were snapped up. It is even reported that two or more of the B. & M. directors disposed of their holdings to New Haven interests.

Lee, Higginson & Co. Agents.

Lee, Higginson & Co., the brokers who secured the 109,948 shares two years ago, were the principal agents in the latest deal. The American Express Company only the past week turned over practically all the Boston & Maine stock it had left. In the former coup, the trustees for this company sold the New Haven interests 24,650 shares.

A stockholder of the Boston & Maine, who has been cognizant of the latest move to consummate the monopoly deal, said to-day to the AMERICAN:

"I know by talking with Boston & Maine directors in the past few weeks that for a long time interests supposed to be identified with Mr. Mellen's road have been buying up thousands of shares of Boston & Maine stock.

"They have even approached the directors. They were present at the directors' meting of the Maine Central Railroad Company, which is controlled by the Boston & Maine. Directors were approached then.

Why Stevens Was Hired.

"Mr. Stevens was brought up from the Isthmus for no other purpose than to take the presidency of the Boston & Maine. But at the directors' meeting a year ago Mellen didn't dare 'pull it off,' owing to the state of public feeling and in view of the court proceedings. The New Haven was also enjoined from voting the stock.

"Now it has pretended to transfer this 110,000 shares to Billard of Meriden, and I'll venture to say that you will see the next board of directors resembling a Connecticut corporation.

"The New Haven road wasn't in any need of extra vice-presidents when Stevens resigned his canal job. What was he brought up here for if it was not to take Tuttle's job?"

BILLARD BOUGHT B. & M. FOR MORGAN

The following statement is issued by C. W. Barron, who is the Boston press agent of the New Haven road, in to-day's News Bureau:

We understand that the present owner of the Boston & Maine is J. P. Morgan & Co., that the Morgan firm was the backer of John L. Billard at the time of the spectacular sale of Boston & Maine stock by the New Haven last June and the Morgan firm has been the real instigator and backer of the acquisition of the remaining $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 stock needed to give an actual majority control of the New England road.

The natural presumption will, of course, be that the Morgan firm has secured control of Boston & Maine in the interests of the New Haven. Mr. Morgan is a director in the New Haven road, and no more convenient method of avoiding the absurdities of Massachusetts laws or removing from Massachusetts legislators the temptation to make political capital out of the New Haven-Boston & Maine merger could probably be devised than the one which has apparently been adopted. The evidence that the Morgan firm has taken over the Boston & Maine in the interests of the New Haven is by no means positive, however.

May Cut Common Dividend.

Mr. Morgan is a director in many other corporations, several of which, notably the New York Central, might be credited with looking upon the Boston & Maine with covetous eyes.

The Boston & Maine common dividend is likely to be still further reduced, a step which would have been taken months ago could the New Haven management have had its way in the operation of the road. There is also a strong possibility of several notable changes in the management, although it is too early to speak with entire precision on this point.

The acquisition of the 50,000 or 60,000 shares of Boston & Maine has in reality been spread over considerable time. As long ago as August an attempt was made without much success to induce Boston & Maine common shareholders to exchange their holdings one for one into American Telephone stock.

Since this first attempt Boston & Maine has reduced its dividend from a 7 to a 6 per cent. basis, and has issued a poor statement of earnings in its June 30 annual report. The result was that last week, with Telephone strong at 128 and Boston & Maine selling at 124½, the tangible margin of profit to Boston & Maine shareholders by making the exchange was decidedly attractive.

An Easier Method.

From the standpoint of the Morgan interests this method of acquiring the remaining 20 per cent. of Boston & Maine stock undoubtedly saved paying much more than the equivalent of $128 per share.

Boston & Maine is a comparatively inactive stock, and the buying up to 50,000 or 60,000 shares in the open market would have inevitably been reflected by a very substantial advance in price.

BILLARD ADMITS B. & M. DIRECTORATE WILL BE CHANGED

John L. Billard, who holds in his name the 109,948 shares of B. & M. stock bought by the New Haven to secure ownership, yesterday admitted that there would be "several changes" in the B. & M. directorate on the 14th, and that the new members would come from Connecticut.

With 160,000 out of 313,434 shares of Boston & Maine in the possession of the New Haven (for nobody supposes for a moment that Billard owns $16,000,000 worth of stock), the merger deal is consummated, and the New Haven has completed its work of taking possession of the Boston & Maine.

"I presume the story is true," says President Tuttle, referring to the rumors of changes in the directorate, "but for the present I have nothing to say for publication. Neither would it be proper for me to say anything regarding possible changes that may be made at next week's meeting."

It is understood that in the purchase of B. & M. stock since July it has been on a basis of even exchange for American Bell Telephone stock.

CALUMET & HECLA APPEAL TO COURTS

Representatives of the Calumet & Hecla filed to-day in the United States Circuit Court a petition for an order restraining A. S. Bigelow from interfering with the voting of the stock held by the Osceola Copper Company at a meeting to be held in Boston, October 10.

BALLOTS POURING IN BY THE HUNDREDS FOR TEACHERS IN BIG TOUR CONTEST

Great activity to-day in the voting characterizes the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Free European Tour Contest to determine the thirty-six most popular Sunday School teachers in Boston and suburbs.

Friends of 400 candidates are voting early and voting fast. They're sending in their ballots by mail and by messenger, and some are bringing them in personally. They all seem to realize that DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

A number of new candidates have entered since the full list of contestants was published in the BOSTON AMERICAN last Sunday, and from several districts reports have come that ballots are being stored in giant bundles for "dark horses," who will come in strong at a later date.

THE EUROPEAN TOUR CONTEST IS TO-DAY THE TALK OF BOSTON.

And why shouldn't it be?

No other newspaper in America has ever made SUCH A GENEROUS OFFER in a public voting contest. And few tourists have ever traveled in more magnificent style than the winners in this contest will travel when the voting is over. The itinerary of the tours is the best that could be arranged. Everything for the comfort of the tourists has been arranged for.

WHO WOULDN'T LIKE TO TRAVEL THROUGH EUROPE IN THAT FASHION?

Contestants should remember that every ballot forwarded in the contest should bear the name and address of the teacher and the name of the Sunday School in which he or she teaches. They should be bundled into lots of 100 each. Many of the candidates have had rubber stamps made for ballot marking.

HAVE YOU VOTED YET?

The polls will be open twenty-four hours a day.

SO HURRY UP AND VOTE.

Here are the leaders:

MORANDI OUT FOR CITY JOB

Alderman James M. Curley's Tammany Club in Ward 17 is threatened with disruption. "Sammy" Morandi, who probably knows more city politicians than any two other men in Boston, is a candidate for the Common Council in the "Tom and Jim" ward, and has notified the machine leaders that if the nomination isn't handed him on a platter he'll do "things" to the organization.

Alderman Curley recently defeated his rival, Tom, in the State primary contest. Sammy was one of Alderman Jim's stoutest supporters. He feels that his work for the machine warrants his going to the Common Council unopposed.

Aside from his work for Alderman Jim, Morandi finds time to peddle matches at City Hall.

AGREEMENT LOOKED FOR IN LYNN STRIKE

AS RESULT OF TO-DAY'S CONFERENCE, SETTLEMENT IS NOW PROBABLE.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 5.—As a result of a three-hour conference between members of the State Board of Arbitration, union officials, factory heads and Mayor Porter in the latter's office, there is every prospect that the strike of the 1,600 lasters will be settled before to-morrow.

At the solicitation of Chairman Willard Howland and the other officials the union men agreed to appoint a lasters' committee to confer this afternoon with Joseph Caunt, in whose plant the strike started, following the employment of girls on lasting machines.

Mr. Caunt agreed to meet the committee and both sides expressed a determination to reach an amicable agreement.

Strikers Parade Streets.

Should the strike continue, it is feared that hundreds of other operatives in the shoe factories in the city would join the employes now out, and that the shoe industry would be parlyzed at this busy season.

The striking lasters, 1,600 strong, to-day paraded through the streets, stopping in front of every plant running and calling upon those still at work to come out and join them.

There was a big American flag at the head of the procession. Some of the strikers carried small scenes from which red flags waved. The chief marshal of the procession was Henry D. Maulay. There was a band at the head of the parade and crowds on the sidewalk cheered the strikers all along the line of march.

While the strikers were parading, the State Board of Arbitration, consisting of Willard Howland, chairman; C. Dana Palmer and Richard J. Barry, held at the Mayor's office a meeting open to the public. An effort was made there to settle the strike. Mayor Porter is working towards that end, as are many citizens. F. O. Whidden and Michael J. Tracey, business agents of the unions whose members are out, addressed the meeting and stated the grievance of the lasters. Joseph Caunt, head of the shoe factory in which the strike trouble began, was present, and admitted that his concern had signed an agreement with the lasters. But he denied that his concern had violated it. He said that a new system had been introduced in the factory independent of the agreement.

President Bauer of the Lynn Board of Trade urged a settlement. So did Willard Howland, who pointed out how injurious the strike was to Lynn's interests.

Some of the banners carried by the paraders were loudly cheered by spectators. One read: "Shall One Man Destroy Lynn's Industry?" Another bore the words: "No Nationality Here—We Are All Brothers."

HOPPER HURT BY FALL.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—While playing at a local theatre last night, De Wolf Hopper, the comic opera comedian, was severely injured by falling to the stage from a platform set in the scenery. He plunged a distance of eight feet.

DEBS LEAVES FOR TOUR OF NEW ENGLAND

Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for President, and his party of campaigners left Boston to-day in the "Red Special" for a tour of New England. The train pulled out of the North Station at 9:12, five minutes late. There was a small but enthusiastic crowd of admirers at the station to see Debs off. Debs talked and chatted with the station employes and shook hands with them.

Before stepping on the train Debs said to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN: "It is very good to be here in New England. I have always been greeted kindly here, and I have always nothing but pleasant recollections of this section of the country. Among my very good friends are many New Englanders, including Edward F. Moseley of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

As the train pulled out of the station the friends on the platform raised their hats, and Debs, standing on the rear platform of the car, raised his hat.

The schedule for to-day calls for arrival in Lowell at 9:45, Nashua, N. H., 10:30; Manchester, N. H., noon, and Concord in mid-afternoon, where the night will be spent. F. S. Crowson is conductor of the train, and the engine is in charge of Edward Nute. While the train is traveling over the Boston & Maine system District Passenger Agent A. P. Massey will be on it.

SAYS SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED BY MINISTER

Millionaire Gets Divorce on Wife's Confession; Preacher Named in Case.

COURT SCORES PASTOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Two confessions of guilt made to her husband by Mrs. Emma Cona Kirk Hall in the presence of a minister and her dearest woman friend, were the exhibits emphasized in the interlocutory decree of divorce handed down by Justice Aspinall in a Brooklyn court. The decree is in favor of E. Bartol Hall, the millionaire Long Island clubman of Glen Cove.

Details of these confessions, showing that Mrs. Hall declared she had been "hypnotized" by the co-respondent, the Rev. Benjamin Pugh Denham, former pastor of the First Church of the Disciples of Christ, at No. 322 West Fifty-sixth street, and now preaching at Pleasant Hill, Mo., are in the possession of the AMERICAN.

Justice Aspinall roundly denounced the clerical co-respondent, and paid a tribute to the press as a great moral force in the community, when an attempt was made by Charles M. Weeks, attorney for Mr. Hall, to have the papers in the case sealed.

Denounces Clergyman.

"Why should the court protect this clergyman?" asked Justice Aspinall. "You say that he has led a good woman astray, despite the fact that he has a wife and three children in Missouri, and that he is still preaching out there. I see no reason why the court should protect a clergyman if he is a guilty party. This man Denham is guilty and I hope that he will get all the disgrace and publicity that the press can spread. He ought to get publicity, and get it hot. I think the records in such cases ought to be open to the newspapers; especially should it be given in this case. It is a very good thing that we have newspapers in which such scandals as this can be exposed. The newspapers are sometimes better than the courts in exposing crimes.

"I regard the press as our greatest moral force in the community. Fear of disgrace through publicity is the strongest deterrent operating upon those who would commit crime.

"It is an outrage," continued the court, "that millionaires like the Vanderbilts can have their divorce papers sealed from the public while the butcher, the baker or candlestick maker of small means has his disgrace or that of his wife scattered forth. I don't think I'll seal these papers. The public ought to read and profit by their contents."

Reminder of Hains Case.

The real story of how Mrs. Hall laid bare her soul before her husband, her minister and her friend is in striking similarity to that alleged to have been made by Mrs. Peter C. Hains to the soldier husband who later slew William E. Annis.

Friends of Mrs. Hall told how Mrs. Hall, at the solicitation of the Rev. John M. Gammack, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Glen Cove, and Mrs. Lena Ward Mount of No. 546 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn, a lifelong friend, had consented to appear before her husband and relate in detail the story of her trip in company with the Rev. Mr. Denham on a steamer through the Great Lakes and to various cities and places in Canada.

Two meetings were held between husband and wife at a boarding house where Mrs. Hall was stopping on West Ninety-fourth street. At the first, only Mrs. Mount was present, but at the second meeting the Rev. Mr. Gammack appeared.

Mrs. Hall, it is said, after detailing her relations with Denham, declared that the minister had possessed a mysterious influence over her; that she was unable to disobey his commands and that his hypnotic influence was such that she had followed him blindly. Disillusionment came later, when she returned to this city after her disappearance on May 12 last at a time identical with the departure of Denham from Manhattan.

Wept While Telling Story.

Weeping and distraught, Mrs. Hall told her story to her white-faced husband. She told him that her love for Denham had disapeared when she realized the wrong that he had committed. Then she appealed to her husband to forgive her. Mr. Hall declined a reconciliation. Soon afterward he made application for absolute divorce. Justice Aspinwall signed an order appointing Charles H. Brush of No. 30 Broad street, as referee. On the findings of Mr. Brush the Court yesterday handed down the decree for the plaintiff.

Mrs. Mount most impressed the referee with her testimony bearing on Mrs. Hall's confession. "We talked of nothing else for a whole week in last June," Mrs. Mount testified. "Mrs. Hall told me every little detail of her eventful three weeks with Mr. Denham on the Great Lakes and in Central Canada. There she said she sometimes posed as his wife and some times as his sister."

The Rev. Mr. Gammack also testified. His statements were largely corroborative of those made by Mrs. Mount, especially as to the fact that he was present when Mrs. Hall made confession of her guilt to her husband.

MONNETT CALLS STANDARD OIL CHARGES FALSE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Frank S. Monnett, ex-Attorney-General of Ohio, was in Kansas City last night to address a Democratic political meeting. The statement of the Standard Oil Company's attorney at Cleveland regarding the charges of attempted bribing was read to him. After reading the statement, Mr. Monnett said:

"What a pack of malicious lies!"

He then dictated a statement, in which he took up in detail and denied S. H. Tolle's statements about the Supreme Court proceedings. He concluded:

"This same S. H. Tolle, who gives out this interview, in company with Larry Neal, both attorneys of record for the Standard Oil Company, were the attorneys I referred to in my interviews as asking the Court to have me stop taking the depositions before E. B. Dillon of Columbus, O.

"No one ever said that the Standard Oil Company called a meeting of the board of directors and passed resolutions ordering $500,000 or any other sum to be invested in the attorney-general of Ohio.

Denies Story of Bribe.

"If all that C. B. Squires said was true, I did not expect to establish by testimony that the board of directors officially acted and ordered anybody to be bribed, but I did intend to show whether Squires had received a telegram from Abner McKinley or whether Charles N. Haskell or Rockefeller had been at any time at Squires' house or whether Squires has been in town with them or whether Haskell or McKinley had offices in New York at 42 Broad street at that time.

"I did intend to find out if possible how Squires knew Senator Foraker had had a conference with me at Washington on the Standard Oil case, and how he knew a settlement was contemplated by the Standard Oil Company through Foraker.

If he was dreaming all of this, it was a happy coincidence, and one worthy of careful investigation from a psychological standpoint.

Squires's Poor Memory.

"Mr. Tolle forgets to quote all of Squires's interview in a New York paper, where he says he knew all of these parties for many years prior to the statement when Squires corroborated my original charge that he was to have immunity if he gave up the real parties.

"And he forgets that Squires claimed he was being backed in his Manhattan fire insurance company case by the Standard Oil people, and forgets Squires remained out of Ohio, as far as I have been able to ascertain, and has remained in New York ever since the attempt at bribery."

TRY AGAIN TO MOVE YANKEE

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 6.—Following an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to move the stranded United States cruiser Yankee from her impaled position on a rock in Buzzards Bay, the fleet of wrecking craft and naval colliers and tugs to-day prepared for another effort with additional pulling power.

That the situation is no ordinary one, was shown yesterday when four steamers and two tugs, aided by all the appliances known to the wrecking companies, failed to make the Yankee move.

M'LAUGHLIN IN LEAD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Edward McLaughlin won the first of the series of three-cushion billiard matches with Ora Morningstar at Daly's Billiard Academy. McLaughlin ran off fifty points in ninety-two innings, while the best Morningstar could do was forty-six.

30 IN PANIC AS FERRYBOAT HITS SUNKEN PILES

With two big holes in her bow the ferry boat Ashburnham of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad groped around in the harbor for forty minutes this morning before her captain was finally able to discover the slip on the East Boston side. The two holes were caused by the ferry boat running onto the sunken piles of the old Cunard dock, the captain being unable to make the proper dock on account of the fog.

When the Ashburnham struck on the piles, at 4:15 this morning, there was a panic among the thirty passengers on board. All rushed for the life preservers. The boat was backed off the piles and another attempt made to head her into the slip. In the meantime the whistle was kept blowing for assistance and to let other craft know where the Ashburnham was.

After backing off the piles the Ashburnham came within a foot of crashing into the stern of a Savannah liner that was anchored in the stream.

Finally, after repeated effort to make the slip, the boat was headed into it and tied up, and thirty very much relieved passengers hurried ashore.

"If the Leyland liner Devonian had not been anchored in that part of the channel the accident to the Ashburnham would never have happened," said Superintendent Fenno to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "The channel is very narrow between the Devonian and the Leyland docks, and during the dense fog Captain Anderson lost his bearings, being forced to make a long detour around the liner. She was going slowly at the time and slid onto the pilings. She was backed off and proceeded to her dock. I should say that the damage was about $400, and she will be hauled up to-morrow for repairs."

KERN SHOULD GET OUT, DECLARES W. R. HEARST

CONNECTION OF VICE-PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE WITH BOSSES AND CORPORATIONS.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 6.—John Worth Kern, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, railroad pass candidate, debtor of bosses and corporations and friend of an attorney for "Gambler Tom" Taggart of French Lick Springs, was the subject of a speech delivered here last night by William Randolph Hearst.

Mr. Hearst declared that Mr. Kern on his record, instead of being a candidate for office should be retired from public life and thus follow "the fashion which conduces so greatly to the improvement of public morals and the welfare of the citizens generally."

Mr. Kern, declared Mr. Hearst, was nominated for Vice-President by one of the most corrupt bosses in the United States—a boss only second in corruptness to Murphy of Tammany Hall—Tom Taggart of French Lick Springs.

He proved by affidavit that Mr. Kern gave all the credit for his nomination to Taggart, and was even proud of the fact, and boasted of it after the Denver convention.

Calls on Kern to Resign.

"Mr. Bryan has offered if elected to share the White House with Mr. Kern," said Mr. Hearst. "If Mr. Bryan should be elected and should do this it will be the first time that historic edifice has been polluted by the presence of a corrupt tool of corrupt bosses, of a paid attorney and political agent of criminally convicted railroad companies, of a paid defendant and public apologist for the most vicious forms of gambling.

"Mr. Bryan said that Haskell was appointed on his approval. Mr. Haskell has resigned. Mr. Kern was nominated with Mr. Bryan's approval. I call upon Mr. Kern to resign and I declare I will bring forth facts more damaging than have been brought forth in this address."

In his arraignment of Mr. Kern, Mr. Hearst read affidavits and newspaper clippings proving the truth of his assertions. He told of the losing and finding of Mr. Kern's pass over the Big Four Railway which he claimed to hold as the company's attorney.

The Big Four, Mr. Hearst said, is a Vanderbilt system, convicted of rebates to the Sugar Trust and fined. He showed the connection between the Vanderbilt roads and the Standard Oil Company, through United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, reading a letter from John D. Archbold to Mr. Depew, thanking the Senator for a railroad pass.

Mr. Hearst described in detail Mr. Kern's connection with Tom Taggart, the gambler, from the time the latter was Mayor of Indianapolis and appointed Kern city attorney. He told of the outrageous street railway scandal which marked Taggart's administration, of the defence of Taggart made by Kern against the action brought by the people.

That French Lick Springs is a gambling resort, pure and simple, and that Tom Taggart is the head and front of it, being president of the company which owns it, was proved by indisputable records, among which was an affidavit of Taggart himself. He read the testimony of officers who raided the resort and seized gambling implements.

And he showed that John W. Kern defended Taggart, the gambler, not only as his attorney but in public statements in newspapers.

"Mr. Kern not only made the defence of Tom Taggart's 'legitimate business interests' in the newspapers," said Mr. Hearst, "but he personally made the legal argument before the Supreme Court of Indiana and endeavored to treat the whole matter of the gambling at French Lick Springs in a flippant manner.

Quotes Letter to Depew.

Mr. Hearst read only one Standard Oil letter in his address. This was addressed to United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, by John D. Archbold, and was as follows:

"26 Broadway, New York,
"Feb. 10, 1902.

"My Dear Senator—Permit me to thank you most cordially for your very kind note of the 5th, with the accompanying complimentary pass. Believe me that I appreciate your kind expression in connection with this courtesy very highly indeed, and only hope that opportunity may offer for such reciprocation as will give evidence to you and your great corporation of the—friendly sentiments I entertain. Very truly yours, John D. Archbold."

"To Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Grand Central Depot, City."

The railroad pass, the receipt of which the letter purported to acknowledge, Mr. Hearst said, was over the New York Central lines, of which system he said Mr. Depew was the representative in the United States Senate.

No Charter to Commit Crimes.

"The Governor of the State of Indiana did not treat gambling in a flippant manner. The newspapers did not treat the gambling at French Lick Springs in a flippant manner, nor did they approve of Mr. Kern's attitude."

Mr. Hearst quoted several Indiana newspapers to show the opinions expressed by the press of Mr. Kern and his friend and client, Tom Taggart. He also quoted the opinion of Judge Robey of the Supreme Court of Indiana, who, after reviewing the case, said:

"The State does not charter corporations to commit crime."

MALDEN STORE BLOWN UP BY THE BLACK HAND

Agents of the Black Hand Society wrecked the fruit store of Joseph T. Russo, No. 157 Washington street, Malden, with a bomb early to-day.

Following the explosion of the bomb, which was heard by the neighbors in every direction for a distance, so great was the force of the concussion, the building took fire.

The building, which was a single story frame structure, occupied by Sing Lee, a Chinese laundryman, at No. 155 Washington street, as well as by Russo's fruit store, was badly damaged by the flames.

Sing Lee, who had heard the explosion and who had gone to sleep again thinking it a railroad torpedo, was dragged half suffocated from his bed by the firemen.

Russo, who for over a year has been pursued by the Black Hand Society, last Wednesday received a letter telling him to place $500 in cash in a fence near the Malden & Melrose Gas Company's works in Charles street, Malden.

Heard Tremendous Explosion.

"If you don't do as told you'll suffer," the note read, Russo tells the Malden police.

The wrecked and burned property is owned by John Hannan, secretary of the Malden Fire Commission. Mr. Hannan and Fire Chief Harry Turner investigated the place shortly after the department arrived.

They found that the floor right under the front transom to the main door in Washington street had been blown to pieces, as well as the counters at each side.

Bits of broken pieces of iron, the fragments of the bomb, the officials think, were found scattered in every direction.

People living in the vicinity heard a tremendous explosion at about 2 o'clock this morning. As the store backs up close to the Boston & Maine railroad most of those who heard the concussion believed that it was a railroad torpedo.

Rescued by Firemen.

Sing Lee, who sleeps in the rear of his laundry, was stunned or dazed, for he went to sleep again and did not rouse until the firemen dragged him from his bed.

Russo, after he got his threatening letter from the Black Hand Society, went to Mayor G. L. Richards last Wednesday and asked for a permit to carry a revolver. He got the permit and then the revolver.

Russo's persecutions by the Black Hand Society began over a year ago. Just about that time he became a member of the Christian Science Church.

One night he was attacked, beaten, bound and gagged by agents, he believes, of the Black Hand. They held him up in a lonely street in Edgeworth. He was robbed of all the money he had in his pockets.

The members of the Malden Christian Science Church came to his relief and bought him a good horse with which to carry on his fruit business.

About a month later the horse was found in his stable in Main street badly slashed and mutilated, the work of Black Hand agents, it is believed, who had used keen knives.

Six weeks ago a wagon was backed up to the rear of Russo's store and thieves broke into the place and looted it of all the stock of fruit.

Russo has reported his whole story to Chief of Police Timothy J. Foley, and the police of Malden are to-day working on the case.

STEAL HARDING DAVIS'S HORSES

NORTH CASTLE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The discovery was made to-day that last night the stables of the country place of Richard Harding Davis, the author, had been broken into and three valuable horses had been stolen. The occurrence is all the more aggravating to Mr. Davis because only a few weeks ago he was appointed a deputy sheriff of Westchester county.

HISGEN'S PLEA TO THE VOTERS OF CALIFORNIA

Independence Party Candidate Declares There Is Nation-Wide Need for New Party.

CONDEMNS OLD MACHINES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—In his address before a great audience here Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for President on the Independence party ticket, said:

"This is my first visit to the great State of California. I have dreamed of coming here, it seems, all my life. I think every other man and woman who live in other States of the Union has had the same dream. It is a wonderful State and its fame has circled the globe. The great disaster that befell San Francisco showed how the love of the nation went out to that stricken city of the Pacific Slope.

"In addition to the business enterprise of the residents of this section of the country, they are famed afar for their independence and their demand for honesty and justice in the high places of the land. It is to discuss questions of government in connection with the two old parties that I have come all the way from my far-off home in Massachusetts to your hospitable shores.

Need of New Party.

"I am the candidate of the Independence party for President of the United States, the first national candidate of the new party. And I want to say that among the first delegates to come to me in the convention at Chicago were those from this State. I wish to thank those delegates at this, the first opportunity I have had in their home State. I have learned many things since I began my campaign.

"I have learned, for one thing, and to me that is a very important thing, that outside of the party leaders themselves there is a general agreement that there is a necessity for a new party in this country. Men who have been staunch Republicans and loyal Democrats all their lives have given me this assurance in all sections of the East, South and West where I have visited.

"They have given reasons for this statement, too. The first reason they advanced is that the two old parties are now so close together that they are practically the same, and that we no longer have one great party to act as a check on the other.

What the People Want.

"At one time the Democratic party and the Democratic candidate stood for radical action—stood for the enactment of laws which would enable the people of this country to rule. But all that has passed away. The Democratic candidate has seen a new light, and he is following it. He hopes that it will lead him to the White House. But I beg leave to remind him of that good old saying of honest Abe Lincoln about not being able to fool all of the people all of the time.

"I have also noticed during our tour of the country that there is a general agreement that the platform of the Independence party is what the great mass of the people want. This was told to me by men who have hitherto been bitter partisans. One business man from Cleveland, whom I met in Albuquerque, declared that he believed our platform was the best document that has been penned since the writing of the Declaration of Independence. Other have told me the same thing, and I honestly believe that it is a platform that represents the ideas and desires of the great mass of the American people.

"Compare our platform with those of the two old parties. In both of the old party platforms you will find the trail of the Standard Oil and other mighty trusts. You will find the clever handwriting of the political trickster; you will find gross misstatements of fact, and you will find promises that the writer never intended to keep and which they could not keep if they would."

The men, if they return to work, will do so on the same conditions that existed prior to the strike."

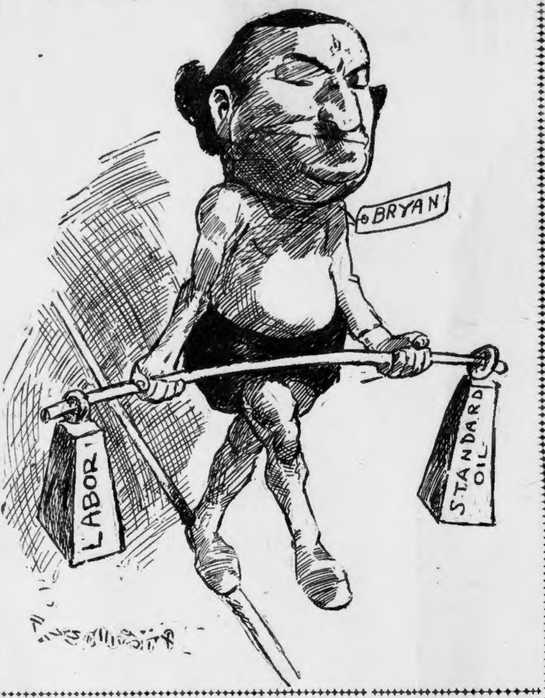
WALKING FOR A FALL



CAMBRIDGE LATIN BOYS VICTIMS OF POISONING

7 MEMBERS OF FOOTBALL TEAM STRICKEN BY MYSTERIOUS MALADY; START INVESTIGATION.

Seven members of the Cambridge Latin school football team, comprising some of the star players in the squad, are so afflicted with a mysterious case of blood poisoning that they are unable to play.

The disease became manifest last week, just prior to the game last Saturday with Somerville High school. The Cambridge men played the game and lost by a score of 5 to 0.

During the past three days the blood poisoning has become so acute that the boys have had to cease practice. While their condition is not regarded as dangerous yet, they are suffering severely. The blood poisoning shows itself in outbreaks on the arms, knees and necks of the afflicted players.

Thoroughly puzzled and alarmed by the situation, the school authorities and Medical Examiner Albert Norris of Cambridge are investigating to trace the source of the trouble.

Green, the quarterback and one of the best men on the whole team, is terribly bothered with his neck. In the case of Left End Duvay the outbreak is on his knees.

The sores are painful and irritating. The men have "gone off their feed," as the expression goes, and are in no way fit to play such a strenuous game as football.

Dr. Norris, the medical examiner, happened to be called to treat some of the boys and his inquiries showed that the other members of the team were feeling under the weather. This led to a general investigation. Green, the quarterback, was the first man to be seriously affected. He felt ill early last week and the blood-poisoning symptoms were showing before the Somerville game last Saturday. Green played, however, as did other members of the team who were beginning to feel ill, though they did not know why. The team was not in good shape, though it did manage to hold the snappy Somerville eleven down to a 5 to 0 score.

The conditions at the Latin School are to be thoroughly investigated. It is argued, however, that the cause of the blood poisoning must be outside the school, else other pupils would be affected.

MRS. SILSBY AT WORK IN JAIL LAUNDRY

Mrs. Rose A. Silsby, in East Cambridge Jail, on the charge of murdering Clinton E. Childs at her home in Waltham on the night of September 24, suffered so much anguish over her plight while alone in her cell that she asked the warden to let her go to work.

It is customary to permit prisoners charged with a capital crime to remain idle, but Mrs. Silsby pleaded that this rule be broken.

It was easier, she said, to stand restraint and suspense when she had some work to do. She wanted to get her mind off her plight as much as possible. When a woman prisoner was discharged Mrs. Silsby was given her place. She is now working in the jail laundry.

To-day she was visited by her daughter, Miss Frances Silsby, and by her sister, Mrs. J. F. Curran. After they left the jail they said that Mrs. Silsby was enduring great mental suffering.

HUB NEW PARTY MAN SPEAKS AT BALTIMORE

30 DAYS IN JAIL FOR SPEEDING

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Thirty days in the city prison, with no alternative of a fine, was the sentence imposed by Justice Olmstead in the Court of Special Sessions on Charles Staples, who had been convicted of overspeeding an automobile. Staples, who was chauffeur for President Bush of the Bush Terminal Company, had been convicted on two previous occasions. The patrolman who arrested Staples for the offence for which he was sentenced informed the court that Staples deliberately tried to run him down when he tried to arrest him for speeding his car at thirty miles an hour on Broadway.

HINDOO GUESTS OF MRS. BULL

Dr. J. C. Bose, professor of physiology in the Calcutta University, arrived here on the White Star liner Cymric, with his wife, and with S. Nag, his assistant.

The thre Orientals were met at the dock by Mrs. Ole Bull of Cambridge, widow of the famous violinist. They will be Mrs. Bull's guests for two months in Cambridge, and then will contine on the two years' journey they are making through the Occident.

Dr. Bose is a supporter of the new idea that there is no gap in the spheres of evolution between plant and animal life.

GIRL FALLS ON STOVE; FATALLY BURNED

Evelyn Ereelson, a two-year-old child, was so badly burned at the home of her parents, No. 18 Wise street, Jamaica Plain, last night, that her death followed at the City Hospital. She was seated in her high chair near a gas range, and in some manner toppled over upon the stove, receiving fearful burns about the whole body.

CUMMINGS TELLS OF LOVE IRISH HAVE FOR GERMANS

A. O. H. HEAD SAYS SONS OF TWO COUNTRIES RULING POWERS IN UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Matthew Cummings of Boston, national president of the A. O. H., spoke last evening to an audience numbering 5,000 in Terrace Garden, this city, the occasion being the celebration of German Day. His audience were members of the German societies of New York. Mr. Cummings is at the head of an Irish organization, with a membership of 250,000. He was warmly greeted by his hearers and frequently interrupted by hearty applause. He said in part:

"We deny in the most positive language that this is an Anglo-Saxon nation. We deny that England is the mother country, and we deny that the great progress and achievements of this country have been brought about solely through the efforts and influence of the Puritans or the descendants of Puritans.

All Europe Our Mother.

"All Europe is our mother, not England. But if they base their claim for calling this an Anglo-Saxon nation on the assumption that a majority of the people in the United States are of English blood, then we again deny their claim, as those of German blood and extraction are 30 per cent. of the population, and those of Irish blood are 27 per cent., both combining 57 per cent. of the total population. So that figuring along those lines we can truthfully claim that instead of this being an Anglo-Saxon nation this is a Teutonic-Keltic nation.

"Perverted American history has ignored as much as possible the valorous deeds of the German race, but history cannot deny that when the American colonists were in desperate straits at Valley Forge that Baron Steuben left his native land, crossed the ocean, volunteered his services to Washington, drilled the footsore and disheartened American army, brought about order and discipline in the ranks and revived the fighting spirit of the American soldiers.

"Nor can history deny the service in the Revolutionary War of such patriots as De Kalbo, Herckheimer and Von Wodke.

German Heroes in War.

"In the Civil War wherever Germans were found in the population they were represented in the army in more than their proportionate number. They saved Missouri for the Union, and the Federal rosters of Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Kansas will show the great number of Germans who fought under the banner of Old Glory in order that this nation might live.

"American history will ever ring with the German names of such men as Schurz, Siegel, Krantz, Koltes and Kuster, and, my friends, poor old Ireland gave the reddest drops of her heart's blood to the cause of American freedom.

"The first blow against English rule in this country was struck in New Hampshire by John Sullivan, afterward General Sullivan, the son of an Irish schoolmaster, and the powder he captured on that occasion was afterwards used at Bunker Hill.

"Our Irish exiles fought from Lexington and Bunker Hill to Yorktown, from Bull Run to Appomattox. They were with Dewey at Manila Bay, and with Schley at Santiago.

Working Hand in Hand.

"It is an undeniable fact that American history has been written with the apparent intention to extol the so-called Anglo-Saxon element in their relations to American liberty and civilization, while it gives but very scant justice to the achievements of other races, particularly the Germans and the Irish.

"Historical records prove that there were at the lowest computation 25,000 of American Tories of English blood who fought against the American army under Washington and in aid of England.

"For a long time there has been the very best of relations existing between the A. O. H. and German societies, as the interests of the organizations are identical. I am very proud to say than on January 22, 1907, the A. O. H., representing the Irish race in America, and the German American Alliance, representing the German race, signed a written agreement that henceforth they would work together as a unit representing 57 per cent. of the population of this country on all questions of national interest to both races.

"As a united body we will oppose an alliance of any kind, secret or otherwise, with any foreign power and this government, and particularly between Great Britian and the United States, and we will oppose any candidate for public office who is in favor of such an alliance.

Ireland With Germany.

"With both races organized as they never were before, we will insist that the Anglo Saxon propoganda, which aims to Anglicize everything American, must cease, and that the personal rights and liberties of all American citizens must be protected.

"I come here to-day as the executive head of a great Irish organization to extend the hand of sincere friendship to the German people, and to say to you that if England's continual attempt to curb the progress of the great German nation should lead to war between England and Germany, the German nation in that struggle will receive the heartiest support of the Irish people in the United States."

OFFERS TO SELL SPANIELS THAT SOLD PAPERS

Thousands of readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN have stopped on Boston Common at the Park street entrance to the subway to watch the beautiful little Porto Rican spaniels who sold copies of this newspaper. They were owned and trained for the work by the late Charles Smith. This newspaper salesman was a character out of the ordinary, as well as his dogs. He was a cripple and supported by crutches, and with his pets working with him was one of the most successful men in his line in the country.

He spent infinite pains upon his dogs and they were not only docile and intelligent to the highest degree, but had aptitudes no others possessed. Given plenty of exercise and open-air life, they were strong and healthy to a degree seldom attained by canines of their breed. Each of these dogs earned in a year more money than is paid many a laboring man. If a dog can smile, they used to smile on customers.

Admirers of the beautiful animals have tried to buy one of these dogs of Mr. Smith, but they were valuable to him in his business and he loved them as much as they did him. No children were better fed or cared for or more tenderly nursed when ill. Mr. Smith died recently and his widow has gone to Hartford, Ct., to reside with her mother at No. 771 Park street in that city.

She has four of these dogs. One she is going to keep. The other three are now for sale, but Mrs. Smith will let no one have them to use for a commercial purpose. She will have to be convinced by any purchaser that any dog taken from her will be kept solely as a pet and treated with the loving kindness which "Maudy," "Juno" and "Muggins" deserve.

GROCERS HEAR EXPERT TALK AT FOOD FAIR

Grocers from all over New England, who attended the food fair of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association in the Park Square Coliseum yesterday and listened to addresses by John A. Green, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers, are turning over in their minds to-day the many valuable and useful hints given them by Secretary Green, who spoke on trade conditions and matters of business interest to the retail grocer.

The attendance yesterday broke all records at the food fair in the Coliseum, the place being jammed both afternoon and evening. The beauty of the decorations and the excellence of the show arrangements aroused many compliments, and were spoken of by Secretary Green in both his addresses.

The free entertainment provided for guests was enjoyed by every one present. Sousa's Band gives afternoon and evening concerts. The new march, "The Fairest of the Fair," composed by Sousa especially for this exposition, was called for again and again.

Onaip, the Hindoo mystery, gave exhibitions which mystified his audience to the utmost. The guests could not and do not yet understand how Onaip could make a piano and a human player rise in the air, move about and even turn upside down, while the player kept on playing all the time.

Listening to the remarks of Secretary Green, watching Onaip and the other features of the free entertainment, hearing Sousa's Band and taking in all the trade features of the exposition proper kept the visitors busy as bees to the closing hour.

DROVE TAXICAB INTO THE RIVER TO ESCAPE MOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—There were scenes of mob violence in the theatre district following a night of comparative quiet in the "Red" taxicab strike. Two men employed by the New York Taxicab Company were seriously injured and sent to Bellevue Hospital, and there were several arrests added to those made through the day.

Charles Hamilton of No. 885 Kent avenue, Williamsburg, driving a cab guarded by Special Policeman James Flynn, was held up at Twenty-eighth street and Third avenue by a crowd, and both men were severely beaten with blackjacks. A crowd of 500 persons surrounded the vehicle while the two men fought desperately.

Succeeding finally in running the cab out of the crowd, they sped down Third avenue. In front of a hat store, at No. 406, Hamilton lost control of his machine. The car went across the sidewalk and smashed a large show window. Flynn was thrown out, his jaw was broken and he sustained serious injuries. He was taken to the hospital.

Hamilton turned into the street with the cab and started through East Twenty-eighth street to the East River, the mob again chasing him.

Clubs and stones were hurled and two shots were fired. Panic-stricken, Hamilton ran the cab out upon the pier and blindly jumped. The cab struck a steel pillar and was wrecked, and the driver landed in the water. He was rescued by Policemen Lorenz, Shiffert and McKeon of the East Thirty-fifth street station, who leaped into the water after him.

INDIGESTION

A Chelsea Woman Suggests a Course of Treatment.

How to Strengthen the Organs of Digestion and Really Cure the Disease.

There are plenty of remedies by which you can relieve for the time heartburn, pain and gas on the stomach and can smother nervous sensations and induce artificial sleep. But when you take your next meal all your troubles begin afresh.

Some people know that the strength which the weak stomach needs, and for the lack of which the whole body is suffering, can be found surely and quickly in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a preparation known in medical circles as the greatest blood and nerve tonic. In hundreds of instances these pills have succeeded where every other remedy had failed, and in every case the cure was radical.

Miss A. Gertrude Stewart, of 642 Broadway, Chelsea, Mass., obtained no relief from indigestion until she tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sufferers from stomach trouble should profit by her experience. She says:

"I had suffered for years from indigestion and would be in bed for two or three weeks at a time. I tried nearly everything I could think of for relief but found none. There was a full feeling in my stomach and I had considerable gas on it. I had a ravenous appetite at times and then again cared for nothing. I was subject to severe nervous headaches and dizzy spells and was short of breath. I had very little color and was in very poor health.

"The doctor's prescriptions did not help me and I took a salt water trip thinking that might do me good. But as I got no relief I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I commenced to get better after taking a few boxes and could eat without the food distressing me. I took several boxes altogether and can eat anything I want now and am in good health."

Every dyspeptic should have a copy of our diet book which is mailed free to any address. Send postal card request for a copy today. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

GERTRUDE HOFFMAN'S ART OUTSHINES ATTIRE

Now the Very Music of Spring, Now Strangely Weird, She and Her "Salome" Are Accepted by Boston.

As light and airy as the very breath of Spring, a few moments later as weird as the grim horror of death, such is Miss Gertrude Hoffman in her famous classical dance versions of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" and in "A Vision of Salome."

Miss Hoffman comes to Boston with the new musical review, "The Mimic World," which opened at the Majestic Theatre last night to probably the largest audience that ever jammed into that house. She was the premiere attraction, and the audience waited with expectant interest for the curtains to part on the first part of her program, the "Spring Song."

Diaphanously clad, to represent a maiden of the ancient Spring-time forest, Miss Hoffman danced, or rather skipped and bounded and leaped lightly to and fro, coyly eluding the wooing youth who pursued her. The audience watched her in sheer delight, keeping quiet till the time came for the outburst of applause at the close. The costume is daring, but thought of it seemed to be lost in appreciation of her grace and her classic art. She seemed the very spirit of Spring, moved by Spring's own music.

The change to the shuddering intensity of the "Salome" dance was swift and startling. With sinuous abandon the dancer portrayed the agony of the wretched Salome, dancing around the head of John the Baptist, finally kissing the lips and then collapsing. Again the applause broke forth, given in tribute to the artist's power if not in mere admiration of beauty, as was the case in the "Spring Song" dance.

"The Mimic World" is a succession of burlesques of popular plays, ranging from "The Thief" to the gay musical comedies.

Walter Lawrence as "Prince Danilo" scored particularly in his song, "My Lady Wine," enhanced by the dancing of Miss Gladys Moore. Bert von Klein was good as George M. Cohan and later as Richard Carle, his imitations of Carle's daddy-long-legs dancing raising a quick hand.

Arthur McWatters and Grace Tyson burlesqued "The Thief" brightly and Miss Tyson's imitations of Marie Dressler and others were funny. George W. Munroe raised many a laugh as "Tiny Daley" and the "Apache dance" of Bert French and Alice Els was one of the best parts of the show. An "Apache" in this sense is not an Indian, but a Paris bully.

The production is generously staged and the chorus moves and sings with life and snap.

Hurrah! "Round-Up's" Back

Klaw and Erlanger's big show, "The Round-Up," a drama of life on the great ranges of Arizona, was played at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening before an audience which completely filled the house and by a company which left little to be desired in the way of excellence. This play presents a remarkably vivid picture of life of cattlemen in the Far West. The third act, an Arizona canyon, where gold may be plenty but water is far more precious, is the setting of a battle scene which thrills the most blase. There are two rivals for the love of a woman, whom one has lost and the other won, fighting Apaches side by side, in peril so great that the injured man forgives the author of his misery; there is the clash of Uncle Sam's soldier boys and the Indians and the fall of a curtain upon a tableau that is like a page torn from the book of life. Then there is the great round-up scene, with the cook wagon, the real live bronchos and the men who can ride the bucking beasts. There is tragedy relieved by love and the nobility of the great simple soul of "Slim" Hooper, sheriff of Pinal county.

And it is capitally acted, too. Maclyn Arbuckle as the sheriff, Orme Caldara, W. E. Kibloe, Harold Hartsell, John J. Pierson, Miss Rockwell, Miss Barrett were especially effective.

"Stock" Back at Boston

With every seat in the immense house taken, a most remarkable demonstration of approval and home welcoming was accorded to members of the Boston Theatre stock company upon the opening of their regular season in Justin Huntley McCarthy's "If I Were King."

Throughout the entire show the demonstration by those present took the form of a continuous ovation, and numerous curtain calls ended only when the pretty and trim young women ushers passed armfuls of floral tributes to every member of the company.

The cast included all the old favorites, and in addition several new members, among them Frank Losee, late of the Belasco forces, who met with instant approval in his part of Louis XI.; Gertrude Binley, a Brookline girl who has appeared in plays here in the past, and Dudley Hawley, late of the Keith & Proctor forces in New York.

Wilson Melrose, as Francis Villon, and Eleanor Gordon, as Katharyn de Vaucelles, the court beauty, with whom the hero is in love, both scored their usual successes. Supporting Mr. Melrose are Rose Morison, as Mother Villon, Mary Saunders and Beverly West.

Vaudeville at Orpheum

Vaudeville was inaugurated at the Orpheum Theatre last night very successfully. From start to finish the bill was pleasing to the audience. William Courtleigh in George V. Hobart's "Peaches" headed the bill. Mr. Courtleigh's support was strong, especially that given to him by Edward O'Connor. "The College Girls and the Teddy Bears" is a prettily staged piece of musical comedy that was greatly enjoyed. Miss Grace Cameron was particularly pleasing to the audience. Cliff Gordon, the German comedian, succeeded most beautifully in murdering the English language. A very fast skit is "The Manicure Girl," which is given by Hines and Remington. The Taylor sisters do a good act on roller skates, and Halliday and Curley make a lot of fun in "The Battle of Too Soon." Canfield and Carleton present an interesting turn entitled "The Hoodoo." The moving pictures are good.

"La Sylphe" at Keith's.

A half dozen stellar numbers and a dozen more good ones are presented at Keith's this week, one of the best vaudeville bills that this city has ever seen. "La Sylphe," billed as "the sensation of New York for the past six months," has a classic dance act that is semi-Salome, semi-contortion. It's thoroughly classic. Willa Holt Wakefield, society entertainer and pianologiste, introduces a distinct novelty in the way of vaudeville entertainment. Alice Lloyd—with the accent on the Alice to distinguish her from others of a popular stage family—is one of the daintiest and cleverest English comediennes. The eight Kellinos, with their unusually clean and attractive acrobatic act, are held over for another week. The rest of the bill is good.

"Strongheart" by Craig.

"Strongheart," the college football drama, which has been enjoyed by thousands of Bostonians, was seen for the first time "in stock" when given by the John Craig Company at the Castle Square Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. The play could not be presented at a more opportune time—just when the gridirons of the universities are beginning to sizzle.

"Strongheart," the brave, heroic, long-sighted Indian, was depicted by John Craig in a manner that roused so much enthusiasm that after receiving eight curtain calls, following the dressing room scene, where his self-denial is so evident, he was obliged to come before the curtain and express his thanks in a neat speech.

"The Stubbornness of Geraldine" is the offering for next week.

"Weeps" at the Grand.

Tears and laughter follow in quick succession at the presentation of "Little Heroes of the Street," that is on the boards at the Grand Opera House this week. The plot and scenery are such that the audience is keyed up to so high a pitch all the time, and when the final curtain fell last night the applause was simply deafening. Scenes in everyday life are portrayed in a true manner and the trials and difficulties of a defenceless woman and the pitfalls that confronts her are made apparent. In the play love, hatred, murder, nick of time rescues and hair-breadth escapes are depicted, and then when the girl finally comes out of all her troubles successfully and the villain has been put to rout, the audience feels thoroughly satisfied.

Golly, But You'd Laugh

If you want to laugh yourself inside out go to the Globe Theatre this week and see S. H. Dudley in the musical comedy, "A Black Politician." The cast is composed chiefly of colored players. Good singing and dancing prevail from the rise of the curtain until the finale of the last act. The chorus is exceptionally well drilled, and its work is snappy and well executed.

Mr. Dudley, as Hezekiah Doo, a jockey who is always getting in "a jam" while trying to help his friend in questionable schemes, is a whole show in himself.

The Widow's Just as Gay

"The Merry Widow" began another week of its long run at the Tremont Theatre last evening. This is the seventh week it has held this stage and it has been a season of delight to the music-loving public. This remarkable Viennese operetta not only is of a high order of merit as a composition but has a number of entrancing musical gems. Miss Abarbanell and Donald Brian continue the leaders in the cast.

"Driven from Home"

"Driven from Home" is the name of the play which was given yesterday as the week's offering at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. Frances McHenry is seen in the part of Margie Maynard, the heroine who is cast upon the world by a hard-hearted father although she has done no wrong. It is a piece full of heart throbs and exciting incidents.

"The Red Mill" Grinding

David Montgomery and Fred Stone last night began the second week of their engagement at the Colonial Theatre in "The Red Mill," and faced an audience which taxed the capacity of the house. These comedians are such great favorites here that it is safe to say that they could again duplicate their run of nearly three months which took place at this theatre last Winter. "The Red Mill" is one of the best of musical comedies and gives the stars and all the company ample opportunity to display their gifts to the best advantage.

Marie Yet with Us

Miss Marie Doro entered upon the last week of her engagement at the Park Theatre last night, the play remaining "The Richest Girl." Both Miss Doro and the comedy from the French which is now the vehicle for her best efforts have been very well received by the public. The play received an initial production here and has undergone not a few changes since the opening night. It is now to be seen at its very best. Miss Doro's work in "The Richest Girl" is delightful all through.

Oh, the Show Girls!

"The Star Show Girl Burlesquers" were the piece de resistance of the dramatic menu offered to patrons of the Howard yesterday, and this organization is a bunch of entertainers who can please an audience as well as any company on the road. The burletta, "A Mile a Minute," made a big hit.

Columbia Theatre

Harry Fox and Miner's Merry Burlesquers opened at the Columbia yesterday with a show that was so good that the crowd could not keep away. The company kept the audience in a roar with merry antics, jolly sayings and pleasing songs. The olio acts were first-class, and the Millership sisters made an especial hit. Tomorrow evening Prokos and Jack Crosby will wrestle.

Palace Theatre

The Behman Show and Bryan's American Girls were the burlesque combination which filled the Palace Theatre yesterday with an appreciative throng of amusement seekers. Pete Curley and Tommy Glenroy are the principal comedians and were very funny in the burlesque, "Out on Strikes."

In the Leopard's Den

Pauline Russell and her den of performing leopards are attracting unusual attention at Austin & Stone's Museum this week. This daring little lady goes into the cage with the savage beasts and by the touch of her whip makes them do all manner of stunts. The Manhattan Girls are putting on a good show.

The Handcuff King

Freeman, the "Handcuff King," is amazing audiences at the Hub Theatre with the ease with which he escapes from handcuffs, shackles and straitjackets.

Prize Photos Shown

A new feature at the Bijou Dream moving picture theatre has been added in the way of a prize photograph competition. In addition to the regular show these photographs are reproduced on the screen.

Six New Songs

Six new songs are being sung at the Theatre Comique this week and another batch of interesting moving pictures have been added. The songs are illustrated.

"The Devil" on Films

If you can't afford to see "The Devil" acted at high prices go to the Theatre Premier this week, where it is being thrown on the canvass in the form of moving pictures. There is an entirely new bill.

An ARROW COLLAR that will try neither tie, thumb nor temper 15c.—2 for 25c.

BOY GAVE LIFE TO SAVE SISTER FROM MAD DOG

TEN-YEAR-OLD LAD SUCCUMBED TO RABIES AFTER BATTLE WITH BEAST.

Little ten-year-old Tommy Griffin, who lived with his mother and four-year-old sister, Margaret, in a modest little house at No. 30 Hichborn street, Brighton, died a hero. He manfully sacrificed his life so that his tiny sister might live.

Just six weeks ago to-day little Margaret was playing with her dolls on the doorstep of the house. She was so interested in their waxen faces that she did not notice that a ferocious-looking Boston terrier, frothing at the mouth, was running down the street towards her. The dog appeared to be mad. He was yelping and barking, but still little Margaret paid no attention.

The dog rushed madly at little Margaret. She shrieked and her brother Tommy, who was playing baseball in the back yard, hearing her outcries, seized a baseball bat, ran to his sister and struck the dog over the head.

Hospital Too Slow.

The mad dog had inflicted a slight wound on the little girl's right arm. But Tommy saved his sister's life. The infuriated dog dashed at Tommy and inflicted a deep bite in the little fellow's lip. Then the dog ran down the street, in the direction of North Beacon street, snapping at several pedestrians.

Soon after Tommy was bitten Dr. A. A. McCauley was summoned and he cauterized the wound. The wound did not trouble Tommy again until last Thursday, while he was attending the Brighton Parochial School. He complained of a severe swelling in the throat and was sent home. Upon his arrival home, his mother offered him a glass of water. She was horrified to see his jaws close with a snap and to see his frail body shake with convulsions. The mother did not realize what the convulsions meant.

Friday she summoned Dr. McCauley, and he ordered Tommy's removal to the City Hospital at once. There it was declared that he was suffering from hydrophobia and anti-toxin serum was hastily ordered from the Pasteur Institute in New York.

Had to Send to New York.

Writhing in terrible agony, while the anti-toxin was on the way to Boston Saturday, Tommy died early in the afternoon showing all the symptoms of hydrophobia. His parents were not allowed to approach the little white cot, for fear that they might contract the dreaded disease.

The Board of Health ordered an open-air funeral, which took place in front of the little fellow's home Sunday afternoon. His mother and sister were prohibited from taking one last look at the little hero. Unostentatiously he was borne to the cemetery and buried.

To-day the Brighton police are bending every effort to trace the dog, fearing that he might have bitten other persons. Little Margaret is taking daily treatment for rabies at the City Hospital and is being given the serum which was ordered for her brother.

PHYSICIANS IN FALL RIVER IN HOSPITAL WAR

FALL RIVER, Oct. 6.—War has been openly declared against President Richard T. Borden and the board of trustees of the Union Hospital, the largest public institution in this city.

The medical and surgical staff of the hospital at a mass meeting refused to care for any of the accident work whatsoever that is sent to the hospital by the liability insurance companies.

President Borden of the Union Hospital, of the law firm of Slade and Borden, who have handled all the cases for the liability insurance companies, signed a contract with the liability companies, agreeing to do all their accident work for a large sum of money.

It was charged at last night's meeting of the physicians that the companies wished to have their own hospital, where the operatives might be treated. Then when suits were brought in court, the companies would have first access to the hospital records. The injured operatives, it was claimed, would be denied the privilege of consulting the records.

Only last week the Union Hospital opened a new building which cost $200,000. It is believed that the whole staff of the hospital will be discharged.

MILLIONS OF FISH KILLED BY KEROSENE

T wharf fishermen to-day got over their scare that Georges Banks, New England's greatest fishing grounds, were passing away, and that a subterranean oil well of volcanic origin was killing the fish there. It was found that the thin film of oil on the water which for three weeks has killed millions of fish, came from the washing away of a deck load of kerosene from a Nova Scotia schooner in a recent storm.

In the past three weeks every incoming fishing schooner has reported encountering dead fish by the million floating on the water on the Georges Banks. It was noticed, too, that the water was covered with oil.

The fishermen feared that some subterranean oil well had broken loose, the same as has occurred following earthquakes in the Gulf of Mexico. In that case the fishermen feared the destruction of the best fishing grounds on the Atlantic coast.

HARTFORD IN MOURNING FOR DEAD BISHOP

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 6.—Right Rev. Michael Tierney, Bishop of Hartford, is dead here following an attack of apoplexy with which he was stricken last Saturday evening.

The end had been expected for some time, yet only an hour before death came the physicians had marvelled at the vitality of the patient and even thought he might live several hours.

There had been three sinking spells during the day, but a slight rally followed. Shortly before 3 o'clock there were signs of dissolution, and those who were present when the end came were at once summoned.

Bishop Tierney did not regain consciousness, which left him early on Sunday, and he fell asleep peacefully and with a smile on his face.

As soon as the death of the bishop had been announced to those present the Right Rev. Mgr. John Synnott, the vicar-general, who will administer the diocese until the vacancy in the bishopric is filled, had a consultation with the others of the household.

YALE BREAKS RECORD WITH 3,400 STUDENTS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 6.—At the first meeting of the Yale corporation for the university year of 1908-09, it was announced that the number of students enrolled would exceed 3,400, being at least 300 more than ever before in the history of the institution.

GOV. RUSSELL'S NEICE BRIDE OF HARVARD MAN

Robert H. Neilson, Nephew of Harriman, Weds Miss Sarah E. Russell in Cambridge.

SMART SOCIETY EVENT

One of the first and most important of October wedings was that in Christ Church, Cambridge, at noon to-day, of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Russell of Cambridge and niece of the late Governor William E. Russell, to Robert Hude Neilson of New York.

Miss Russell is the older daughter of the house, and has figured conspicuously in the smartest affairs of the University City ever since her debut, some three or four Winters ago. Her father is a prominent member of the Somerset, Union, Country, Riding, Exchange and Oakley Country clubs. Her mother, before her marriage, was Miss Lillian Tenney.

Nephew of Harriman.

Mr. Neilson who graduated from the Harvard Law School in '06, is a son of Henry A. Neilson of New Brunswick, N. J., and a nephew of Edward Harriman of New York.

It was a distinctly fashionable throng which filled the quaint little Cambridge church, which was simply decorated for the occasion with white carnations and asparagus vine about the altar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Prescott Evarts. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully gowned in a white satin empire-princess, trimemd with old lace, and wore a long tulle veil edged with lace. Her bouquet was of valley lilies.

Junia Russell was her sister's only attendant and wore a most becoming creation of yellow and white and a large black plume-laden hat. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

Best Man and Ushers.

Frederick Neilson was his brother's best man and the ushers were George Augustus Washington of Wessyngton, Tenn., Yale '03, and a law school classmate of the groom; Davis Conrad of Winchester, Va., Albert Bigelow Schultz of Pittsburg, Pa., Joseph W. Swain of Bristol, Pa., Nicholas Rutgers, Nathan Benedict and Harry Carpenter of New Brunswick, and Joseph B. Russell, Jr.

A reception and breakfast at the Russell home, No. 69 Sparks street, followed the ceremony. Mrs. Neilson and Mrs. Russell received with the bride and groom. After their return from an extended honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Neilson will reside at No. 27 Washington square, north, New York.

THE GIRL WITH A HUNDRED SELVES

The confessions of an unknown girl writer, in which she lays bare her inmost secrets

BY ? ? ? ? ? ?

CHAPTER I.

Her Confession of Rebellion

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

I AM writing these confessions because the hundred selves of me will have their way at last. They have thundered and raged, wailed and begged so long for an outlet that I can no longer cheat or throttle them.

Thundered and raged, wailed and begged—think of it! Yet no one ever guessed or dreamed.

How could other people know, when I, in my prim, placid, conventional way, walked stupidly and inanely—as girls must—giving never a sign, not even a starveling hint, night or day?

How could other stupid people guess, with my nice, smug, smiling mantle of deception wound tight about me, and the huge, delicious secret hugged close, close against my soul?

A hundred selves—choked and maltreated, driven into silence by the noisy, impudent affairs of every day, with rude hands pressed over their beseeching lips!

A hundred selves—snubbed, insulted, hustled off the premises so often that at last they have mutinied and will no longer yield submission.

How I glory that they will not yield! How I exult with them that they have at last rebelled!

The thing I ask myself a million times is this: Why did Nature give to me a body which so punily represents the whole of me?

Why, when she fashioned me, did she not put in some touch or line or feature that would show one-thousandth part the fire and strength and splendor that rage in me?

Why did she make of me a creature young and soft and yielding, a creature of prettiness and sweetness only, of whom men say, "How beautiful!" when I want them to say, "How strong!"

Did Fate Make Me So in Jest?

Oh, the fates must have been napping—or maybe they were joking—when they sketched the prim, narrow, placid path my fretful feet must follow.

When the high gods hurled my soul into the purple abyss, they must have played a toss-penny game. The hand that sent me, raging and rebellious, toward this planet, and flung me into this girl's body, must assuredly have missed its aim.

How I—big, wonderful, ferocious—ever got stranded in this slim, delicate shape of clay is a problem so stupendous my reason swoons before it!

A hundred selves! And only one slim, sweet, pretty girl self to contain them all! Just one puny channel for them all to squeeze through. The knowledge of it crowds upon me, burns me, clamors through my veins.

There are days when all these vehement selves take possession of me at once, pushing, striving, forcing me with one united urge until it seems to me I must unleash them and let them take command.

On such days I feel like a giant bound with baby ribbon and cobweb lace; a giant, with strength enough and might enough to blaze my way through the conventions of a million worlds and laugh at the consternation, the terror of the startled souls in my wake. What superb havoc I would work—superb!

I Pass a Mirror, and—"Thud!"

And then the thing I dread happens, before I know it, and I am swiftly, rudely snatched out of the clouds and drop with a thud to the earth.

What is it happens? I pass a mirror! I see myself—my trinket personality; the only self that others ever see; the self that is a travesty on the whole great self of me.

I am no longer a giant, with terrible strength. I am only a girl—a frilly, pretty, innocuous thing—creature of ribbons and feathers and fluff. A girl with all the things that lure and fascinate, and none of the things that are great.

I stand and gaze, with all the might of my contemptuous selves, and ask myself: "How can you blame them—the stupid ones that cannot understand? How can you blame them when that ornament is all they ever see; that ornament with its puffed hair, its big eyes, its witching face and taunting, scarlet lips?"

And I shake my fist at that reflection in the mirror; shake my fist at it, and cry: "Why? Why? Why? Oh, you pretty, puny thing! Oh, you helpless, hopeless thing! Shame on you, that you are just a pretty girl!"

Shall I tell you what I see in the mirror? Shall I describe to you that girl-self? Here I am:

A tall, slim, lithe figure, just escaping angularity of line; a face that is made of curves and velvet shadows; a soft, round chin; little ears, and hair that curls and twists and puffs upon the forehead; a nose that is merely pretty, and that is all; a red mouth like a flower; a mouth that was made for kisses, never for great speeches or important words; a mouth that shows a flash of white teeth when I laugh.

My Girl-Self Is Puny; I Am Great

Conceited? Not at all. Just plain facts about the self that everybody sees—the self that enrages me because it is so pretty and nothing more.

But, oh, my eyes! I can forgive much because of my eyes. They, and they only, hint the splendor of my hundred selves; and I can exult in them, for they are fire and they are light and they are strength combined. If only they could always speak for me, and never be extinguished by the silly nothings of my trivial self! Oh, if they only could!

Oh, pretty girl-self; oh, silly girl-self; why is there not more of you to tell of me? Not that I hate you, girl-self; not that I am ungrateful for your beauty. But, oh, you are puny and I am great.

It is this fact—huge, hateful, insurmountable—that confronts me with terrible actuality. It is this fact that infuriates me. In mind I rush at it and claw at it with savage, impotent fingers. And I cry out, to the unheeding, laughing fates:

"You had no right to do it! No right, do you hear? Why, why, why did you make me this feeble, helpless thing—this barrier to my splendid selves?"

Are Women Going Backward?

No. 2—Is Woman To-day Less Womanly Than Her Grandmother Was?

By DOROTHY DIX

JUST what is meant by a woman being womanly is one of the Dundreary things that no feller can find out with any degree of exactitude.

If you mean by a woman being womanly that she is trivial and inconsequent; that she is ignorant, humble, meek and helpless; that she sits down and weeps for what she wants, and patiently and uncomplainingly bears injustice and mistreatment; then, I answer, "NO; the woman of to-day is NOT as womanly as her grandmother was. And I bless Heaven for it."

But if you mean by a woman being womanly that she is tender and loving, and gentle, and sympathetic, and kind, and helpful, then I assert that there has never in the whole history of the world been so womanly a woman as the woman of to-day. And I thank God for it.

Men—I mean men who think with the ends of their tongue; not the ones with real gray matter in their heads—have always been pursued by a terrible fear that if ever women progressed to the point where they would be creatures of almost human intelligence they would somehow cease to be women.

This is not a new spectre with the modern man. He inherited it from his ape ancestors, as he did the falling dream that still troubles us when we have eaten not wisely but too well. Every generation of men, since the hour in which man made the momentous discovery that he was stronger than his wife and could beat her, has been worried over the danger of women losing their womanliness.

In the dawn of education the learned priests and teachers withheld the knowledge of reading and writing from women, on the ground that it would unsex them and make them less womanly to acquire those arts.

They Write, and Are Still Women

Women learned to read and write, and still kept on being women and acting like women. Then, no longer ago than our great-grandmammas' day, it was asserted that it would be the ruination of the feminine sex to study geography, and would deprive a woman of all of her womanly qualities to know, for instance, what was the capital of France, and in which direction the Hudson River ran.

Yet in time woman was conceded the privilege of studying geography, and she is still doing business at the old stand. No cataclysms have occurred. Women are still women.

It is to laugh, is it not, to recall these facts? And yet there are still men outside of the homes for the feeble-minded who are sitting up nights, pale with apprehension of women losing their womanliness if they are given the ballot—which is merely an expression of opinion about the laws and law-givers under which women live and pay taxes.

Undoubtedly our grandmothers were a meeker lot than the women of to-day are. They bore a heap that the modern woman does not stand for. If a man was a brute and came home and beat his wife, she cringed before him and took it like a dog. If he abused her, and insulted her, and made life a burden to her, she "suffered and was strong," according to the old cant phrase.

There was nothing else for her to do. There were few merciful divorce laws. She surrendered her property into her husband's keeping on her wedding day, and so had no financial independence. She had been trained to no gainful occupation, and so she had to be humble, and, outwardly at least, forgiving of spirit. Her virtues were the virtues of slaves. A snap of the fingers for our grandmothers' meekness!

Doesn't Your Wife Love You?

As for woman's other virtues—love, kindness, loyalty, gentleness, sympathy—I ask you, on your honor, Mr. Man, if you really believe that those sweet feminine flowers ever bloomed more profusely than they do now?

Do you believe that the love light ever burned with a clearer and steadier flame in any woman's eyes in the past than it does in those of your own wife to-day!

Do you believe that a tendered hand ever smoothed a sick couch, or ministered to its lover, than the hand of your mother, or sister, or wife?

Do you believe that any pictured Madonna ever clasped her baby to her breast with more clinging arms than those with which your wife held your first-born to hers?

Do you believe that the woman of to-day is less loyal to her own, less faithful and helpful than the woman of the past?

Do you believe that your wife would turn her back upon you if misfortune should come your way? Or would she put her shoulder to the wheel and pull with you to the death, if need be?

Do you believe that your wife, your daughter, your sister, turns a deaf ear to the tale of misery and hardens her sympathies against the unfortunates of life?

No, no, no! You know you don't. You know that the women of your own family are all that is good, and gentle, and kind, and dead easy; that they turn themselves into hydrants of tears over every hard luck story, and that black will become white before they waver in their loyalty and allegiance to their own.

And they don't have to do it, either. They could get up and go out and support themselves better than they are being supported, half the time, if they would only do it.

Progress Enhances Womanliness

The truth is that, instead of progress having lopped off the virtues that are considered essentially feminine, it has amplified them. A woman's heart used to be a private residence, with a jealously closed door and with room in it for only her own husband and children. Now it is an inn, with accommodation for all who are sorrowful and oppressed and weary and heavy laden.

It is the modern woman whose tenderness for age is so great it makes her build and manage homes for the old, whose love for children is so absorbing that it rears orphan asylums and works to save the poor child from the greed of manufacturers who would crush out its youth.

It is woman's pitying helpfulness that puts its arms around all the weak and erring children of men by means of hospitals and reformatories and all the innumerable sweet charities that engage the modern woman's activities.

Think of these, and then say if the woman of to-day is less womanly than her grandmother.

Sayings of a Cynic

A man loses his illusions first, his teeth second and his follies last.

Every married man will sympathize with the man who has asked for an annulment of his marriage on the ground that, at the time, he was not in a normal state of mind or a responsible condition.

"Don't worry!" Instead of bemoaning your fate because you have a disagreeable wife, congratulate yourself that you haven't got two.

A good lie in time saves nine poor ones next morning.

There's an old superstition that it's bad luck to be married in May. Why not include the other eleven months?

FRINGE ON HATS

THE large hats with a cabbage bow situated somewhere near the back of the head have been familiar for many a day, but the pretty variation of the accepted style was seen on an all black hat. Here the bow was of the usual shape, of soft black taffeta, but the two ends were quite long and finished with a deep black silk fringe. It was pretty and, as the fringe hung over the brim of the hat, it was graceful. Such a style is very appropriate to a woman who is nearing undetermined middle age, for somehow or other the fringe seems to add dignity to the otherwise extremely flippant chapeau.

When Lovers Disagree

The Spinster Lady as a Mender of Broken Hearts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE Spinster-Lady and her little friend had sat for some time gazing at the stormy setting of the sun across the troubled gray waters.

Presently the girl heaved a tremendous sigh and the Spinster-Lady turned toward her. "Nannie," she said, "that is the third time you have sighed since we have been sitting here. What in the world is the matter, child?"

Nannie raised a woebegone little face. "Sydney and I have quarrelled," she said.

"Have you, dear? That's too bad. But the quarrel is not so bad that it cannot be made up, is it?"

"I suppose it can be made up," was the doubtful answer, but the thing is, who is going to do the making up?"

Which to Blame?

"Who was to blame in the first place?"

"I don't know. I think we were equally at fault, and that's the reason it is so hard to be the first to apologize."

"And yet I suppose that you and Sydney consider yourselves very fond of each other, don't you?"

"Oh, yes, we do; and I know that we really are, only I just hate to be the first to say I am sorry, and I suppose Sydney feels the same."

"Nannie," said the Spinster-Lady, earnestly, "if anything should happen to Sydney before you had the chance to tell him you are sorry, you would never get over it."

"No, indeed," said the girl, with a shiver.

"Well, dear, that often happens. Have you ever heard the lines, 'Many go forth in the morning who never come back at night'?"

Nannie gazed across the sea wistfully.

"Sydney has gone out in his boat," she said. "I wish he would come back soon. I can't wait to tell him I'm sorry."

"That's right, dear. It may be hard to humble yourself, but you will be glad afterward that you had the moral courage to break out like a woman. There could be no greater sorrow than to go through your life with words of forgiveness unspoken. Never hesitate to say that you are sorry."

"Do you know, dear Spinster-Lady, "that there is one thing that worries me, and that is that Sydney and I seem to quarrel a good deal. We have got into the way of disputing over every trifle, and half the time we are bad friends."

"Are you, Nannie? I'm sorry to hear that, dear."

"I don't know who is to blame. Sydney says that I am quick tempered, and I feel that he is unreasonable, and the first thing we know we have both lost our tempers. Of course, we always make up, but I sometimes wonder if we are not taking a great risk in marrying."

"You are, indeed, unless you learn to control yourselves, and you must remember that every quarrel, no matter how small, leaves a scar; and all the time it grows easier to lose your temper. Until you can learn to be patient and forbearing with each other it would be folly to marry."

"What would you advise us to do? For we really do love each other."

Conquer Temper

"Dear, if you really loved each other you would not quarrel so often."

"Oh, but I do love Sydney dearly, and I know he loves me."

"Well, dear, prove it by conquering your temper. The next time you feel yourself getting angry at Sydney just shut your lips tight and don't speak a word."

"Good advice," cried a boyish voice, "and I'll follow it as well as Nan."

The Spinster-Lady and Nannie turned to find a manly looking young fellow standing behind them.

"I couldn't help listening," he said, apologetically, "and I think I've learned a lesson. Nannie, girl, I'm sorry for all I said this morning. Can you forgive me?"

"Oh, Sydney, a thousand times. And I am so sorry for all I said."

The Spinster-Lady stole softly away, for she knew that her part in the reconciliation was over.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT VERY FLATTERING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a young man for the past two years whom I loved very dearly, but about a month ago we had a quarrel. We have been friends for the past week or more. I had an appointment to meet him the other evening, but as I do not care for him as I did previous to our quarrel I do not wish him to be anything but a friend.

There is a ball coming off shortly, and as I want him to take me I do not wish to insult him. Kindly advise me whether I should keep my friendship with him or not, as he is an old friend of the family and I do not wish to hurt his feelings. B.

AS far as I can see you merely wish to continue the friendship in order that he may take you to the dance, which is certainly not very flattering to him. If he thoroughly understands that you look upon him merely as a friend, it is all right, but if you are leading him to believe that you care for him you are doing very wrong. You might ask him to take you to the ball, but let him know that you are making the request simply as a friend.

GIVE HIM UP AT ONCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a man for eight years. He has a very bad disposition and is very jealous of me. He does not want me to speak to any of my men friends. He has quarreled with and left me six or seven times, but always came back and said it would never happen again. But in two or three days it would happen again if he saw me speaking to some gentleman. So, two weeks ago, we had another quarrel and he stopped keeping company with me. He has come to my house three times to make up with me, but I said no. He has never mentioned matrimony to me. My mother thinks I ought to get married. Kindly advise me what to do in the matter. ANXIOUS.

GIVE him up at once. You are simply throwing yourself away on such a man, and wasting the best years of your life. He will never ask you to marry him, and if he did you would be very foolish to accept him.

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

RESTORE BLEACHED HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am a woman twenty years old and was the proud possessor of a very heavy, thick and long light brown curly mop of hair, which I very foolishly had bleached. I am so disgusted with the results, for my hair, which was once pretty, is now one streaked mass of coppery, brassy colored stuff, light in some places and dark in others. The only conclusion I can come to is to have it shaved off my head and raise a new crop. How long will it take till a new head of hair will grow? Will it be darker than the old one was? Is there any danger of catching cold by having my hair cut? A TROUBLED HEART.

THAT is always the penalty you have to pay for bleaching or dyeing the hair. It is undoubtedly disagreeable to have it streaked, but it is worse to have it so short, as it would be necessary to cut it. Trim the ends and keep trimming them as the hair grows out at the scalp. This will leave it long enough to do up, which will be much better than to have it very short. It takes a long time for it to grow out.

The Manicure Lady

She Revels in Blank Verse, but Finds George Soulless

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"THERE was a playwright in here this morning to have his nails did," said the Manicure Lady.

"Is that so?" asked the Head Barber. "And you did them?"

"Don't be fresh!" snapped the Manicure Lady. "Remember your place, George. There ain't any nourishment in getting fresh with me.

"As I was saying, this playwright was here about two hours ago, and he was a awful smart fellow. All of his plays is in that there blank verse, which is the same as poetry, only it don't have any rhymes in it.

"He told me about all of 'em. One is called 'The Torture of Thucydides,' and another is 'The Golden Fleece of Colchis,' and another is 'The Maid of New Orleans,' or something like that. They must be dandy plays."

"I never seen any of them," said the Head Barber.

"They ain't been produced yet," said the Manicure Lady. "The poor fellow has been to every manager in New York, and they won't do nothing for him at all. He told me that he has tried everything, even sleeping a night on a bench in the park like Mister Walter did before he got successful.

That Young Fellow Named Jason.

"There is some awful fine poetry in 'The Golden Fleece of Colchis.' I copied some of it down, so I could take it home and show it to Wilfred.

"It is a story about a young fellow by the name of Jason, who went to find a fleece made of solid gold He took a gang of good fighters along with him, and came back with the goods, all right, but he had his troubles before he landed the fleece.

"The fleece was in a big cave, like the Mammoth Cave, and he never would have got it in the world only the King's daughter fell in love with him and helped him. Here is what he said to her after he got the fleece and was ready to beat it back home:

" 'Fair one, your eyes are ravishing and bold:
Your mouth is scarlet, and your love a dream
Of glory. In your hair a splendor lies
That makes the plants dead and drab of hue
By contrast. When I kiss you o'er and o'er
The cosmos swoons, and angel wings are folded
In dear, delicious drowsiness.'

"Ain't that beautiful, George?"

"It makes a nice noise," said the Head Barber, "but it gets over my head. I can't dope it out."

George Isn't a Bit Poetical

"That's because you ain't poetical," declared the Manicure Lady. "Just listen to this part, where he is bidding her a fond farewell:

" 'My beautiful, the night is at an end—
The dear, long night. And now the east grows pink,
And gentle zephyrs purr throughout the sails
Of yonder vessel riding in the bay.
My beautiful, I must away at dawn,
And cannot take thee, much as I desire
To have thee ever near. I, Jason, love thee.
But Mrs. Jason wouldn't take it right.
For thy great aid, much thanks, and tell thy father
That thou hadst naught to do with this emprise,
If he should ask of thee who aided Jason,
Tell him it must have been some brother Mason.' "

"It might be a nice play," admitted the Head Barber, "but it wouldn't go. There ain't nothing in it about a problem or a broken home, and it don't say nothing about Uncle Sam and the flag. Maybe if he could get Billy Jerome or Harry Williams to stick in a few songs it would draw pretty good, at that."

The Manicure Lady looked at George pityingly. "You poor earthworm," she said. "You ain't got no poetry in your soul."

No Rhymeless Verse for Him

"I don't know what I've got in my soul, and I don't lay any odds that I have a soul," exclaimed the Head Barber; "and that's the second time you've called me an earthworm this week. But I do know that this is an age of common sense, and people ain't going to buy tickets from speculators to listen to a lot of poetry that ain't got no rhymes in it.

"The only playwright that ever got away with that dope and made good was Mister Shakespeare, and he was a major leaguer—not a busher like the guy that just went out. If he ever put on that Golden Fleece thing, you can go if you want to, but any time I want an evening of genuine entertainment for myself and the Missus, me for the Hippodrome."

"I think that young man is a coming genius, just the same," declared the Manicure Lady.

"Maybe so," said the Head Barber, "but you'll have to show me."

WEDDING EXPENSES

MRS. PELL:

Dear Madame—What am I, the mother of the bride, to provide for her, and who pays for the church wedding and decorations?

PERPLEXED MOTHER.

THE bride's family invariably pays for the church expenses, the decorations, and the carriages from residence to church. The bridegroom pays the officiating clergyman his fee, provides the bride's and bridesmaids' bouquets, as well as some little gift for bridesmaids and groomsman and ushers. The bride's family pay all the expenses of reception and refreshments, and the invitations are sent out in the name of the bride's father, mother, or nearest relative.

BETTER AVOID DEBT

MRS. PELL:

Dear Madame—Will you kindly tell me if it will be all right for a couple to get married and get furniture, paying $200 down and pay the rest at $5 a week, and still have $200 laid aside in case of need?

A. GOODMAN.

IT would be much better to pay cash down on whatever furniture you purchase for your new home. It is a bad plan to begin your married life in debt. Select your furniture with an eye to durability and style, so that when your means increase and you add other things you need not be ashamed of your first purchases. Begin modestly, and add as you go along.

A HALLOWE'EN PARTY

MRS. PELL:

Dear Madame—I am a girl of eighteen, and would like to know just how to manage a Hallowe'en party, what sort of games are played, also what would be proper to serve.

FULL directions for a Hallowe'en party will be given in a subsequent number of the BOSTON AMERICAN, and your request will be borne in mind.

"DEMOCRATS AND HOW TO KNOW THEM"

Such a Book Needed to Keep the Party From Playing Off-Side.

"REGULARS" ALL USED UP

WANTED, SOME DEMOCRATS—Democrats in small or large quantity needed immediately. Any known variety of brand accepted, Bryan men, sixteen-to-oners, gold-Dems., near-Democrats or any other kind not now in captivity. Any one having information as to whereabouts of stray Democrats, without reference to age, weight, color or previous condition of servitude, please communicate with the Democratic State Committee.

The Democratic party (?) of this long-suffering Commonwealth is so hard up for Democratic material that it is poaching on the preserves of the Republicans and the Independence party in a frantic effort to dig up men to fill the offices.

SISS-EESS
I KNOW WHERE A DEMOCRAT LIVES

Report of Democratic "Suspect" Raises Fierce Excitement.

The famous old puzzle question: "Why is a Democrat?" is succeeded by the present burning query:

"Where is a Democrat?"

The highways and byways have been scraped bald by those leaders still doing business at the Sign of the Silver Donkey. Everything remotely resembling a Democrat, no matter how shopworn or musty, was roped in to serve in one capacity or another in the present campaign.

Oh, Useless Wail!

As fast as a stray Democrat was rounded up he was trotted to the State Committee and duly ticketed and listed for service. But still the committee, like young Oliver Twist, opened its mouth wide and bawled for more.

IS THE COAST CLEAR
INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS
HISST! NOW WE'LL FOLLOW THEM
ALL RIGHT

Other Parties Need to Guard Their Candidates in This Democratic Famine.

But there wasn't any "more." So what did they do when it came down to cases? Why, they took Republicans and Taft men and Independence party men, and probably they'll ring in Prohibitionists and Seventh Adventists and women suffragists and Mormons and gypsies before they get through. For more Democrats they must have.

Baby, dear, listen here, people are afraid to go home in the dark now lest the Democrats catch 'em.

How do we know? Look what they've been doing already to get Democratic material.

Last Friday the Democratic Congressional Convention for the Fifth District nominated Congressman Butler Ames for re-election, when Ames had previously been nominated by the Republicans on the preceding Teusday. Ames is a Republican, and the Democrats simply butted in and tried to steal him for their ticket, having no congressional material of their own to suit them.

The Democratic State convention last Thursday elected as convention vice-president William F. Aiken, of Greenfield, when Mr. Aiken is an Independence party man and has been nominated as a Hisgen Presidential elector by the Independence party.

But the Democratic State convention blundered further in trying to "garb" men who didn't want to be "garbed." It nominated as Bryan electors at the national convention Ferdinand Strauss, head of Leopold Morse & Co., of this city, and Charles S. Davis, of Plymouth, member of the local law firm of Davis, Weston & Walcott.

THIS OUGHT TO KEEP THEM OUT

Timid Republicans Take No Chances.

Couldn't Stand Bryan.

Messrs. Strauss and Davis would be splendid Bryan electors if they were going to vote for Bryan. Unfortunately, they are going to vote for some other candidate. They have informed Secretary "Tom" Collins of the Democratic State convention of the melancholy hindrance.

Mr. Strauss knows Taft, admires Taft, is going to vote for Taft, and doesn't dream for a second of being a Bryan elector or a Bryan voter.

Mr. Davis would be a bully Bryan elector, only, as he says:

"I can't stand for Bryan."

Mr. Davis was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Indianapolis in 1896, and he stood against Bryan then and he stands against Bryan now. He's going to vote for some other man than Bryan. He does not say whether it's Taft or Hisgen.

Hardly had Secretary "Tom" of the Democratic State Convention read Mr. Strauss's letter declining to serve as a Bryan elector when he received a telegram from Mr. Davis declining the honor.

The convention leaders are now going over the list anxiously to see if they have miscued on any more of their nominees.

CHANDLER TO FIGHT SUIT OF MISS SAWYER

Byron Chandler, the young millionaire of North Reading, will fight the $100,000 breach of promise suit, which was filed against him at East Cambridge yesterday by counsel for Joan Sawyer, the pretty young actress. According to statements made to-day by the firm of Whipple, Sears & Ogden, attorneys for Chandler, the young millionaire's answer to the young girl's charges will be filed soon. They do not state, however, on what he will base his contention.

Miss Sawyer, who was lately with the Merry-Go-Round company, sprung a real sensation a few weeks ago when she caused the attachment to be placed on Chandler's property for $100,000. Since that time and up to the issuing of the statement by Chandler's attorneys to-day all sorts of rumors have been circulated in regard to a settlement of the case.

Miss Sawyer comes from an old Southern family. In her charges against the young millionaire she declares that he lured her to live with him as his wife for at least two months under the promise of marriage. She states that she was known as Mrs. Byron Chandler during September and October of last year, when the couple rented apartments at No. 205 Hemenway street, in the Back Bay district. She further states that Chandler told her that he had secured a divorce from his wife and would marry her just as soon as the decree of divorce became absolute.

William R. Scharton is attorney for Miss Sawyer. The papers in the case were filed at East Cambridge yesterday and will be opened to-morrow.

NO LAWS TO PREVENT BABE FROM CRYING

"A crying baby is not a public nuisance," is the decision of the Brookline Board of Health. And this verdict disposes of the petition which complained of Donald, the small son of Charles Howard, who resides at the corner of Williams and Harvard streets.

The members of the Board of Health, who are also the selectmen of Brookline, did not regard the petition and remonstrance in an extremely serious light, personally, yet they handed down their decision in all due gravity.

There is no law to prevent a child crying, and therefore he is not a nuisance legally.

LEAGUERS TO NOMINATE

AGED VETERAN ASLEEP WALKS FROM WINDOW

Dreamed Huge Avalanche Was Descending Upon Him, He Says.

DOCTORS FEAR FATALITY

Albert Hand, a veteran, seventy-eight years old, walked out of a window at his home at No. 122 Vernon street, Roxbury, while asleep, and is in the City Hospital in a dangerous condition. His collar bone was broken, he received contusions of the knees and internal injuries are feared. Mr. Hand was in the Thirty-second New York Volunteers during the civil war and fought in the Army of the Potomac. His son, who died recently of the bubonic plague in Mexico, was also in Uncle Sam's service, fighting for his country at Santiago during the Spanish War. He was the last of aged Mr. Hand's relatives, and the veteran felt his loss keenly. Mr. Hand lived with Mrs. H. G. Hall and her aged mother, Mrs. Freeman, and it is feared that the accident which has befallen her long-time friend will have a serious effect upon the latter, who is almost blind. They have been friends for many years.

Mr. Hand was found in the yard. To Mrs. Hall he said:

"I dreamed that huge boulders were crashing through the house and that it was an awful wreck. I jumped from the window because in my dream I seemed to be in danger of being crushed to death."

Owing to his advanced age, City Hospital surgeons have little hope of the veteran's recovery.

"HANDCUFF KING" REPEATS HIS TRIUMPH

Freeman, the "Handcuff King," jumped in handcuffs from the Dover street bridge this noon into the Fort Point Channel and came up to the surface of the water in seven seconds, holding the open cuffs in one hand.

A tremendous cheer greeted him from a crowd that jammed the north side of the long bridge, the drawbridge piers on both sides of the stream and even the roofs of buildings lining the streets adjacent to the bridge.

Freeman's feat was spectacular, especially on account of the quickness with which he freed himself under water from the handcuffs which had been locked on his wrists. They were regulation handcuffs and were put on in the presence of and tested by a patrolman who stood next to Freeman when he made the forty-foot jump from the bridge.

Freeman cannot swim, so he had no way to insure his getting out of the water except by tieing a rope around his middle and having men of the bridge department out in the water, who held the loose end of the rope.

Freeman appeared at the top of the water so quickly that the men in the boat had to pull in the slack rapidly, as he was floundering about and keeping himself up with his unshackled hands as best he could, holding tightly onto the handcuffs meanwhile.

Freeman is a head-liner the first part of this week at the Hub Theatre, his engagement there closing to-morrow night. For his final night here he challenges anyone to produce a packing case from which he cannot escape.

OLNEY ARNOLD HEADS 'RHODY' DEMOCRATS

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 6.—Olney Arnold of Providence was nominated for Governor of Rhode Island at the Democratic State convention to-day, the honor being conferred by acclamation. The rest of the ticket is Adelard Archambault of Woonsocket for Lieutenant-Governor, Robert Grieve of Providence for Secretary of State, Thomas P. Corcoran for Attorney-General.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock by Judge Frank S. Fitzsimmons, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, and upon his motion Richard P. Cumstock was elected permanent chairman. Chairman Cumstock's speech was eulogistic of Bryan, the Denver platform and Governor Higgins. He predicted that the Democrats would carry Rhode Island at the coming election.

Then two hours and twenty minutes were devoted to a factional fight over the seating of Thomas F. McArdle, delegate from the sixth Pawtucket ward, and he won, after oratory was exhausted, by an overwhelming majority. Out of 250 delegates only thirty-two voted against him. Then the convention proceeded to nominate a State ticket by acclamation.

WEINBERG BACKS DOWN

Alleging that the charges of wholesale illegal registration in Ward 8 which he filed with the Board of Election Commissioners were instigated by persons who shirked responsibility as soon as the complaint was filed and threw cold water on his efforts, Hyman Weinberg to-day withdrew as complainant in the case. The charges were aimed at the Lomasney machine in Ward 8.

The commissioners had already dismissed the charges in eight of the 120 cases, after holding public hearings.

GREAT THRONG AT OPENING OF N. E. FOOD FAIR

Mayor Hibbard and Mexican Officials Assist in Formal Ceremony.

BOSTOCK ANIMALS FEATURE

befo Immense crowds greeted the opening in Mechanics Building of the New England Food Fair and House-Furnishing Exposition under the auspices of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association. The doors of the great building were flung open to the people at 7 o'clock last evening.

President David Gerow of the Association made a brief address in formally starting the big annual exhibition. Mayor George A. Hibbard of Boston, Albino R. Nuncio, Mexican commissioner, and Arthur P. Cushing, Mexican consul in Boston, and the officers of the association were grouped around President Gerow.

Address by Mayor.

Mayor Hibbard then told about what a great thing the annual food fair is and what it does for Boston and New England, and he referred to the great interest which the other big American Republic, Mexico, takes in the exposition. Albino R. Nuncio and Arthur P. Cushing followed, speaking briefly.

Then the Mexican National Band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," hats were off in a moment, and the big food fair was open.

Everything was in readiness for the thousands of visitors as they eagerly flocked hither and thither. In the main hall especially are the booths most artistic. The decorative devices of no two are alike and so, happily, no two are rivals.

The electric lights blazed, the colors were of all descriptions and yet the ensemble blended most pleasingly. Pretty girls dressed in black or white attended the booths and championed the merits of the exhibits and began the long task of handing over the sample dainties.

The Mexican exhibit, range daround the main hall and across the stage, forming an oblong square, was admired by everyone for its thoroughness and attractiveness.

Animal Show in Basement.

The exhibit of the Boston Public Schools in the upper part of Machinery Hall, is more than ordinarily interesting and it drew its full quota of the crowd from the time of opening until the gates closed for the night.

The display of the Fish and Game Commission is most interesting. The series of eighteen paintings representing the different periods in the life of General U. S. Grant, adorning the main hall, are easily one of the features.

The piece de resistance in the minds of thousands is the great Bostock animal show in the basement where the trained wild creatures of the jungle are put through their paces.

The famous Mexican National Band of ninety-seven musicians proved a splendid feature and will be one of the great drawing attractions.

PAPKE SAYS HE'LL BEAT KELLY IN TEN ROUNDS

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—"I'll beat Hugo Kelley inside of the ten-round limit this time and leave no doubt in anybody's mind about it."

This is the confident statement of Billy Papke, made to me the night that he left town to fill an engagement in Springfield, Ill. The articles of agreement for his third meeting with Hugo Kelly were just then being drawn up and the middelweight champion, being well satisfied with the terms that had been agreed to, didn't wait for the final signing.

Papke's confidence is of the real deep-seated order. He has a process of reasoning that is strong and emphatic, all of it being based on the fact of his constant improvement. This is part of what Billy has to say in doping it out, his remarks not being tinged in the slightest:

Papke Keeps Improving.

"Every battle I have finds me a lot better than I was before," he said. "See how much better I was in Los Angeles against Ketchel than at any other time in my career. Even in my two contests with Kelly I showed marked improvement.

"Note that in the first contest he knocked me flat in the first round and gave himself a marked advantage in the early stages because of this little trick. Note also that in the second contest I floored him in the first round and had all the better of it after that right up to the end.

"Kelly is a good fighter, there is little doubt of that, and a wonderfully good man on the defence, as well as being fast and clever when it comes to getting in nad landing a punch. But he is not possessed of the natural strength necessary to beat me, and I will show it when we box the next time. Talk as you like, strength, when backed by skill and headwork, is a mighty big factor in ring contests."

Coast Papers Score Jones.

And in the meantime the Pacific coast papers are scolding Manager Tom Jones at a merry rate for failing to keep his agreement with the Jeffries Athletic Club and sign up there for a match with Hugo Kelly. Los Angeles experts claim Jones made a solemn promise to sign a set of articles that were handed him, agreeing then to the price as set forth. But after Papke trimmed Ketchel in such astonishing style Jones changed his mind and then started on his now much discussed tack of demanding $5,000, win, lose or draw, for the appearance of the great Illinois battler.

In a recent article in a Los Angeles paper Jeffries is quoted as saying that he has a good mind to chastise Jones the first time he meets him for the throwdown, as he expresses it, that he gave the club.

Jones defends his action by saying that while he agreed to match Papke with Kelly in Los Angeles be did not agree to any terms, and after the Ketchel struggle, finding that he had a champion on his hands, he asked for a guarantee of $5,000, which was refused. Then it was that he made up his mind that unless he received that sum he would not sign his man.

Hugo Kelly, now matched to battle Billy Papke for the middleweight championship, has prepared his training scheme and setting at defiance all possible hoodoos will leave to-morrow for his quarters at Antioch, where he will fit himself for the Milwaukee struggle.

AMATEURS WILL MEET TO-NIGHT AT ARMORY A. A.

The big amateur show at the Armory Athletic Association to-night bids fair to provide some of the best sparring sport seen hereabouts for some time. Young Lasotte of Brockton has found it impossible to go on with Max Landy, and the club will try to have some good boy take his place.

There are two other excellent special bouts, however, one between Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury and Joe Murphy of Cambridge, while the other will be a heavyweight engagement, with Jeff Madden, the South Boston boy that won the New England championship last year, opposed to Henry Hall, the colored middleweight champion.

Amongst others entered in the 115-pound class are: John Noble, George Randow, Myer Linda, William Roach, Charles Greenman, Michael O'Mara, John Rodman, William Hootstein, Joseph Traner, Jimmy Hixon, C. Bayer and Jack L. Levy.

In the 125-pound class are entered: James Inman, Max Baker, William Shields, Young McCormick, Dan McLaughlin, Maurice Scanlon and Willie Caren.

Some of the boys in the 135-pound class are: Young Sanders, Joseph Collette, Alec Weston, Eddie Conley, Tommy Keaney, Joe Burchell and Frank Casey.

CROSBY TACKLES PROKOS.

Jim Prokos, "the Terrible Greek," will face a man several pounds heavier than himself in the bout at the Columbia to-morrow night, when he and Jack Crosby of Lynn meet in a finish catch-as-catch-can contest. Crosby is a college man who won fame and championship honors in his college days and has been doing professional wrestling for the past two years. He has won his way to the front by defeating the best heavy and middleweight wrestlers of New England and has been after the Greek for some time. He will ask no favors from Prokos and says the rougher the Spartan gets the better, as he just glories in a rough bout.

CUB STRICKER BEST BLUFFER IN BASEBALL

"Cub" Stricker, the famous old-time second baseman, who with Fred Dunlap, Eddie Cuthbert and Charley Fulmer were among Philadelphia's chief products of baseball a quarter of a century or more ago, was considered one of the best exponents of the bluff to touch the base runner at second base that the game has ever known.

Stricker, in explaining the tricks he used to practice upon players, admits they were purely cases of bluffing. "I remember one day at Philadelphia," said Stricker, "when Harry Stovey of the old Athletics, the best base stealer who ever lived, was called out three times at second, and I will swear that I didn't come within six feet of touching him once.

"On this particular day the game went into extra innings, and with one out in the eleventh Stovey got a hit, and, as usual, started to steal. The throw was a little late, and Stovey went by me several feet away at a tremendous clip as I reached out for him with the ball. The moment he landed on second on his hands and knees, safe by yards, I was kneeling at his side.

"'Did I hurt you, Harry?' I shouted loud enough for the umpire to hear, at the same time pushing Stovey's face down in the dust so that he couldn't reply.

"'Hurt me, you four-flushing lubber,' he sputtered, 'you didn't come within twenty feet of me.'

"But the umpire heard only my sympathetic voice and called Stovey out, and we won the game."

SHRUBB AT HARVARD.

The announcement was made by Captain Rand of the Harvard track team that Al Shrubb will coach the Harvard cross-country team this Fall. Shrubb is the greatest long-distance runner that this country has ever seen and should put cross-country running on a good footing at Harvard.

DAVE M'CLARY HURT.

While driving in a race at White Plains, N. Y., Dave McClary, the man who drove Star Pointer 1:59¼ to his record, was thrown from the sulky to which he was driving Lady Worthy, and sustained a fracture of the collar bone.

The White Sox are playing in splendid form and if they make it three straight with the Tigers the pennant will go to Chicago.

Cleveland is out of the race, slipping up at St, Louis.

In the National League, the Giants went up a peg by walloping the Doves. These teams meet again to-day and to-morrow, and if the Giants win both the New Yorkers will be tied with Chicago and a special series of three gamse will be played to decide the National League flag.

M'CONNELL AND CURLEY TO GET PRIZES TO-MORROW

It has been decided that the BOSTON AMERICAN baseball cups for the most popular professional and amateur player, won by Ambrose McConnell of the Red Sox and Michael Curley of the Roxbury Athletics, will be presented at the American League baseball grounds to-morrow afternoon, when there will be a double-header between the Red Sox and the Athletics.

"Uncle Cy" Young will present the trophies to McConnell and Curley. While the veteran pitcher was defeated by his younger playmate on the team, yet he is so greatly pleased the laurels went where they did that he is delighted to have the honor in awarding the cup, and having heard what a rising and capable player is Curley, he is equally as pleased in presenting to the captain of the Roxbury Athletics the handsome prize his due.

It is planned that the presentation be made at the home plate at about 1:30 o'clock. The friends and fans of both McConnell and Curley are certain to be on hand to take part in the exercises for which they have worked so strenuously in the past few months to bring about—the winning of their favorites on the baseball diamond.

FAST BOUT AT PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Oct. 6.—Local fight fans saw a corking six-round bout between Bartley Connolly and George Gunther.

The bout was very even. It was a vigorous and interesting battle from first to last. Connolly blocked well and countered better than usual. Gunther paid little attention to Connolly's blows to his head and shoulders, but pounded away whenever he got a chance at Connolly's ribs.

The open preliminary was a draw between Packy McFarland and Terry Kelley, and what was to have been a bout of six rounds between George Woodring of Fort Levett and Kid Thompson of New York ended when the referee sent both men to their corners in the third round because they were in no condition to go on.

COVELESKI, COAL MINER IN SHAMOKIN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Harry Covaleski, the giant left-hand pitcher of the Phillies, who got into baseball limelight by his victories over the Giants in the closing games, was originally a coal miner at Shamokin. Strong and rugged, he gained considerable fame among the miners in Schuylkill County for his skill with the ball, and finally attracted the attention of the backers of the team at Wildwood, Pa., who secured him.

Covaleski pitched for Wildwood for two seasons, when he was secured by the Phillies in September, 1907. In the closing games last year Covaleski, while demonstrating that he had speed, seemed unable to control it, and was so raw and amateurish in his fielding, that Manager Murray sent him this year to the Lancaster Tri-State League team to have some of the rough edges worn off by experience. Covaleski pitched good ball for Lancaster and was mainly responsible for the team's place in the race.

At the conclusion of the Tri-State season the tall Polander reported to the Phillies, and Murray used him first against New York merely as an experiment, but with what success is a matter of baseball history.

NEW HALF-MILE TRACK RECORD

What undoubtedly is the world's seven-heat record over a half-mile track was established at the recent Hutchinson, Kan., meeting and goes to the credit of Pay Girl, by Prodigal (2:10). The time made was 2:13¼, 2:12¼, 2:11¾, 2:12¼, 2:15½, 2:16¾, 2:21. Bizzy Izzey, by Escobar (2:13¼), won the first heat; Joe Bowers (4), by Symboleer (2:09½), the next two (and the fastest of the race); Pay Girl the next and Martha C. 2:14¼), by Pat Clare, the fifth; then Pay Girl again first in the next two.

PICTURES OF NELSON-GANS BIG FIGHT

There is a treat promised at the Old Howard beginning with next Monday for the lovers of the squared circle in presenting the moving pictures of the recent Battling Nelson-Joe Gans fight at Colma.

That the Howard is always looking out for the interests of the boxing fans is showed in that no other theatre in Boston will these pictures be seen.

Contrary to most of the moving pictures of championship fights that have before been thrown on the screen, in this instance all of the rounds will be given in full. It will be remembered how the match was for forty-five rounds and the Battler gained the verdict in the twenty-first, the finish coming with Nelson hammering Gans over the ring and to the ropes, with fierce uppercuts and body punches, till finally the negro fell to his knees exhausted and was counted out by the timekeeper, though making an effort to get up within the count of ten.

COULON MEETS HIS MASTER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Yankee Swartz of South Africa at the West End A. C. beat Johnny Coulon, the 105-pound champion, in the greatest bantamweight bout ever seen in Philadelphia. It was slugging from the first gong and Coulon found he had met a man who would fight all the way.

GOODMAN VS. KEYES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Kid Goodman, the lightweight fighter of Boston, and Bert Keyes will meet in the star bout of six rounds at the stag of the [illegible] A. C. to-morrow night. Goodman has fought nearly all the best men in the ring, and only a few weeks ago secured a decision over Dick Hyland in a twelve-round bout in Boston. Goodman is a rushing fighter like Keyes, and they should put up a slashing fight. Both are training hard for the contest, and each is confident of winning with a knockout.

FAST YEARLING TROTTER.

Ed Willis, the colored trainer for W. E. D. Stokes of New York, expects to drive Lady Green Goods (1), (2:30) as fas as 2:20, with a quarter in 32½ seconds before turning her into Winter quarters. Lady Green Goods's two-year-old brother, Robert C., has made a record of 2:17, and another brother, Thomas Stokes, is about as fast.

WOMAN LEAPS FROM CARRIAGE AND IS KILLED

Millionaire's Wife Feared Runaway Horses Would Dash Over Palisades.

OWNED BIG HUDSON HOME

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Impelled by the groundless fear that her runaway horses might dash over the brow of the Palisades, Mrs. Steffen Dieckmann, the wife of a millionaire fish merchant at No. 368 Washington street, this city, was killed when she took a headlong leap from her carriage, at the Boulevard loop, West New York, N. J. She crushed her skull.

Mrs. Dieckmann's maid, Marie Tueers, twenty years old, who also made the leap, received injuries which are likely to prove fatal, it was said at the North Hudson County Hospital. John Dieckmann, the son, and Anton Druyer, the coachman, were badly bruised, the former jumping from the vehicle and the latter by being thrown out. The team, after running two miles, brought up in Hoboken without damage either to themselves or the carriage.

The Dieckmanns live at No. 716 Hudson street, Hoboken, and have a country place at Phoenicia, in the Catskills. Mrs. Dieckmann and her son came back late yesterday on the West Shore road and were met at the Weehawken terminal by Druyer with a carriage from Hexamer's riding academy, Hoboken.

Horses Took Fright.

The Dieckmanns own a large tract of land at the Boulevard loop in West New York, extending for half a mile along the edge of the Palisades. Mrs. Dieckmann suggested that they drive home past the property to see how it was being developed.

When they reached the top of the loop, opposite the office of the Dieckmann estate, in which Mr. Dieckmann himself happened to be with a contractor named Colburn, the driver tried to pass between a north-bound automobile on one side of the road and a steam roller on the other. The team took fright and started at a gallop down the boulevard, which there skirts the brow of the Palisades. Mrs. Dieckmann was greatly frightened.

"We will be dashed over the cliff," she cried. Whereupon she grasped at the reins, and, failing to stop the horses, leaped from the carriage, landing on her head in a part of the road covered with fresh asphalt. The coachman was thrown out on his head. Four blocks further on the maid leaped out. The son was the last to jump. Dieckmann had seen the runaway dash past his office and he and Colburn ran out.

Caught Runaway Team.

"That's your team," exclaimed Colburn, in alarm.

Dieckmann ran to where his wife was lying unconscious. He lifted her to the sidewalk and called an ambulance from the North Hudson County Hospital. By that time the son had limped to where his father stood and aided him in looking after his mother and the maid. The latter was likewise unconscious. The surgeon pronounced Mrs. Dieckmann dead, and he said the maid had a sprained back and internal injuries. The runaway team was caught at Twelfth street, Hoboken.

The body of Mrs. Dieckmann was removed to her home in Hoboken. Druyer, the coachman, was badly shaken up, but not fatally hurt. Young Dieckmann suffered from cuts, bruises and shock.

In their dash the Dieckmann team ran into one driven by William Ackerman and Charles Ellison of No. 322 Fulton street, Union Hill. Both men were thrown out and bruised. At Buer place the runaways frightened a truck team driven by Robert Ackerman. He leaped out and his foot was trampled on and his face cut.

Two Democratic Electors Get Off the Ticket

And Why Many Voters Will Follow Their Example Nov. 3

Pity the poor old Democratic party!

It nominates for Governor a man whose chief claim to fame is the fact that his lack of ability permitted a man whom the public believed innocent to be convicted of murder.

Two of its Presidential electors have already declined to serve, on the ground that they are not going to vote for the candidate of the party. Ferdinand Strauss, of Boston, and Charles S. Davis, of Plymouth, who were nominated by the same convention that nominated Mr. Vahey for Governor, have both withdrawn from the Democratic ticket and declared their intention not to vote for Mr. Bryan.

It elected as "vice-president" of this same convention William F. Aiken, treasurer of the Greenfield Savings Bank, WHO IS ONE OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS ON THE INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE TICKET. Mr. Aiken voted for the Independence League's candidate for Governor last year, and has declared his intention to vote for Mr. Hisgen for President this year.

In the Fifth Congressional District the Democratic party has nominated Butler Ames, THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE for Congress. In part of the same district last year the Democratic party nominated John N. Cole, a discredited REPUBLICAN, for the Legislature.

No wonder Mr. Davis and Mr. Strauss refuse to stay in the Democratic party. Few intelligent Democrats WILL stay in a party that nominates a man like Vahey for Governor, that names Presidential electors who are opposed to the ticket, that elects as vice-president a man who belongs to another party, and that winds up by indorsing a REPUBLICAN, like Butler Ames, in a DOUBTFUL Congressional district.

Fortunately for the State, a new party, which polled more votes last year than the Democratic and which is now moving forward rapidly to furnish REAL OPPOSITION to the Republicans, has placed a ticket in the field this year worthy of the support of every man who does not believe Eben S. Draper and Louis Frothingham should be sent to the State House merely because Senators Lodge and Crane want them there.

William N. Osgood, the Independence League candidate for Governor, is a capable lawyer, against whom no breath of suspicion has ever been directed. As a member of the commission to inquire into the relations of employers and employes he made a minority report which was prophetic in its proposed solution of a question that has now become a most important issue of the day.

Mr. McCartney, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, was for eight years the New England head of the Iron Workers' unions. He is now an employer himself. Unlike Mr. Draper, Mr. McCartney employs ONLY UNION LABOR. He still retains his membership in the union. He is a competent, level-headed executive.

If by any chance Mr. McCartney should ever be called upon to sit in the Governor's chair he would do honor not only to the union men, of whose fellowship he is proud, but to every man in the Commonwealth, employer or employe.

We advise any man who has not yet made up his mind how he will vote to inquire carefully into the character and records of the men nominated by the Independence League in Faneuil Hall last Saturday.

A sure way to rebuke the machine that has foisted Draper and Frothingham on the Republican party and to eradicate the inefficiency that has brought the Democratic party to its present condition in this State is to vote on November 3 for the Independence League candidates.

INK

By James J. Montague

A drop of ink makes millions think.—Montreal Star.

IT was Kipling's delight when he used to be right to portray with a pungent "he"-pen
The uncouth underside of the eddying tide of the rude human creatures called men,
And whenever he wrote there were thousands to quote, from Calcutta to Kalamazoo,
Both his verse and his prose, which convincingly shows what the ink of an author can do.

WHEN Roosevelt assails all the animal tales that Seton and Aesop have written,
And declares that a yak has no horns on his back; that a chipmunk can't wallop a kitten,
The publishers fight for whate'er he may write, and would pungle a dollar or two
For each word of his stuff, which shows plainly enough what the ink of a statesman can do.

WHEN Archbold sits down with a three-finger frown and tells what he'd like to have done,
And issues commands to political "hands" as to how the U. S. should be run,
Dishonor and rout find conspirators out, and treason looms large on the view,
Which shows to all men what the poisonous pen and the ink of a * can do.

Little Editorials from the People

"QUO VADIS, DOMINE"

(TO THE VOTER)

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The concluding paragraph of one of the greatest delineations of Roman life ever written ends with a Latin quotation which was inscribed on the walls of a structure on one of the streets of Rome. It reads "Quo Vadis, Domine," and means "Which way, master?"

The person who inscribed the phrase is unknown to the pages of history, as the religious history of that era is somewhat clouded.

The Spirit of the Man of Galilee had taken a strong hold upon the Roman Empire. He had shown the force of a personality such as never existed before (or since).

The erstwhile pagan who wrote the inscription—wandering through the realms of doubt, probably did not realize the full import of those three words. Ever since then the "Doubting Thomases" have been propounding this same query, "Which way?"

Now, Mr. Voter, in less than two months an election occurs. It is the election of the chief executive of the greatest republic known to history.

Are you disposed to assist in creating a political millennium? Or is the [illegible] of the two old parties too strong for you? Those two parties, who once stood for all that was square and right, are now hide-bound in their rottenness.

As Greece and Rome fell from their once glorious heights when venality coupled with vices acquired from their oriental conquests overcame them, so will this country fall, if the ravages of these political ghouls are unchecked. The only salvation of this country is to come through the medium of a new party.

The man representing this new party (we refer to Mr. Hisgen) is a real man—a man who has done something in life. A fighter in humanity's name, he, single-handed, fought the greatest corporation ever formed—and won.

Now, Mr. Voter, will you, in the face of centuries of enlightenment, look blindly up to some corrupt political boss and ask the old, old question, "Which way, master"? Or rather will you step out in the full sunlight of your suffrage and say, "I follow the light of your torch no longer—I know the way!

In the names of Lincoln and Jefferson (either one of whom if they could witness the degeneracy of the parties they once led would turn over in his graves holding on to his nose), we ask you to carefully deliberate before you cast your ballot.

MR. VOTER, IT IS UP TO YOU.

With Music on the Side

By Wex Jones

"ACCOMPANIED by a trained nurse and an orchestra of twelve pieces," says a Chicago dispatch, "William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, left for Northern Michigan on a hunting trip."

In addition to showing the world that the hardy spirit of the American pioneers has not died out, this news is interesting as showing that the refining influence of music is so highly appreciated in this hustling land.

From a rustic cottage covering ten acres and decorated with frescoes chopped out of some out-of-date European edifice, the hunter sets forth within five or six hours after sunrise.

Clad in a rough velvet suit and attended by only twenty or thirty guides and hunters, in addition to the orchestra, the hardy woodsman feels the joy of the chase surge through his veins, and faces without a tremor the ferocious squirrel, which is laid low by the unerring rifle of Huntsman No. 17.

Over the prostrate form the orchestra plays a nocturne written to order for the occasion. There could be no greater illustration of how one man may combine a passion for the desperate deeds of the chase with a love for genuine hand-made music.

Besides, the use of an orchestra in the woods should help to preserve the game. Even a deer will not wait to criticise the work of the leader, and by removing itself rapidly from the scen of the concert will do much to prolong its life.

Hunters of more strenuous character will doubtless go afield accompanied by a brass band of fifty or sixty pieces. Can't you imagine the African elephant cowering in terror behind a peanut tree as the wind brings to his ears the stirring strains of the Presidential March? And all the native carriers could give a minstrel show of their own when the music grew real lively.

But apart from hunting there are many fields in which the hero might well be accompanied by a band. It would cheer the mountain climber considerably to have a band trailing him with lively music, although the occasional flop of a musician over a precipice might spoil the harmony to some extent.

The explorer, too, might be cheered with music. Imagine Perry making a dash across the ice for the Pole, followed by a gallant company of musicians, blowing icicles from their brass instruments. The Marathon runner would be exhilarated by a drum and fife corps puffing in his footsteps.

Even in the less spectacular pursuits the influence of music must make itself felt. The burglar should have his string quartet to soothe his soul when the safe proved unusually refractory, just as the policeman might effect his capture to slow music. The artistic age comes on apace.

A Divorce Dinner Party

By Winifred Black

A WOMAN who is divorcing her husband on account of an "affinity" dined with her husband and the "affinity" and the lawyers on both sides of the case, and the whole party discussed the whole matter of the divorce quite amicably and pleasantly.

So the papers tell us.

Well, there is nothing astonishing in a dinner like that.

There are some women who dress for funerals with just as much care as if they were going to their own weddings, and some of these women are the chief mourners at those very funerals, too.

There was a woman in California once who thought the sheriff of a certain county was perfectly horrid because he wouldn't let her take a moving picture machine into the prison and make pictures of her son's execution.

She explained afterward that she would have made a tidy sum exhibiting such pictures, and she intended to put a nice headstone at her son's grave with part of the money.

That woman never could understand why people were shocked at her plan.

A woman who can make a dinner party out of a divorce suit is too thick skinned to feel anything that might be said to her on the subject.

I would as soon ask my friends to a little luncheon to be eaten while the surgeon cut off both my arms as to invite any one to be present at a thing like that divorce dinner.

Get the divorce?

Why, what difference does it make whether she gets it or not? She's never been really married.

The wedding ceremony, no matter ho it happened, cannot make a woman such disposition a real wife, even if it performed a dozen times.

I hope the divorce-dinner idea will n become popular.

It is too much like the public hangi fad which was the fashion fifty yea or so ago.

New Hampshire Democrats in a Panic

(FROM THE NEW YORK PRESS)

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 4.—Walter H. Lewis, Independence Party candidate for Governor of New Hampshire, started his State tour by addressing a series of rallies in Manchester. The tremendous crowds which followed every speech of Mr. Lewis have thrown the Hollis-Reed Democratic machine into a panic.

When the boss-ridden Democratic convention nominated Judge George H. Bingham of the Supreme Court for Governor it precipitated a hopeless muddle in N Hampshire State politics. Judge Bingh had warned the convention that he wo not accept the nomination, and he w just as firm afterwards when visited by special committee.

The machine now intends to force u the voters a candidate of its own. T was proved when the same conventi passed a vote giving the executive co mittee of the State committee the pow to "fill any vacancy that may occur."
